MAYORALTY

1—Grand Jury probe looms on alleged fraudulent use of Catholic churchmen's signatures on the petition of Candidate Alonzo B. Cook, former State Auditor.

2—Mysterious Charlestown woman linked with police, underworld characters and Charlestown Navy Yard official in Ward 2 illegal listing scandal, also scheduled for the Grand Jury.

3—Former Governor Curley pledges increased welfare allotments to families with small children if elected.

4—District Attorney William J. Foley charges that "stooge" candidates have been "planted" in race.

5—Women control vote in five of city's 22 wards, with but 22,000 fewer female registrations in Boston total.

6—School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin assails Foley candidacy.

7—Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols promises to build "greater" Boston if re-elected.

Leading to possible grand jury action, two special investigators assigned by District Attorney William J. Foley today began an investigation of charges that signatures of Catholic churchmen were fraudulently placed on the mayoralty nomination papers of former State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook.

Foley's order that his men check on the activities of a man who allegedly certified that the signatures were genuine came simultaneously with a protest against the Cook nomination by Timothy W. Murphy, former city assessor.

Murphy, ally of former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, candidate for re-election, asked the Boston ballot commission to probe the Republican candidate's papers.

Nichols' petition was challenged yesterday by Charles L. Manser, Beacon Hill Republican candidate who alleged that improper names were on the Nichols papers.

While the court action threatened, all the major candidates swung into action with a barrage of verbal shells against their opponents.

Foley assailed Nichols, former Governor Curley and School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin as "stooge" candidates, while Tobin hit vigorously at Foley and the two others.

Vatican in Denial of Jap Report

Story of Aid in War On Chinese Reds Called 'False'

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 15 (AP)—Assertions of private Vatican sources that instructions already have gone to missionaries in the Far East regarding their conduct in the Sino-Japanese war were denied officially today by the Vatican semi-official news service. It said:

"The news has been distributed in America and published under sensational headlines that the Vatican seeks to abet the fight against Communism in Japanese favor.

"Instructions to this effect are said to have been issued to representatives of the Holy See in the Far East. Both pieces of news are absolutely false and have been officially denied by Archbishop Giuseppe Pizzardo (under-secretary for ecclesiastical affairs), Monsignor Tardini (under-secretary of state) and Archbishop Costantini (secretary of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith)."

Mercury May Reach 32 by Nightfall

In spite of a lukewarm sun, today was the coldest day of 1937.

As a matter of atmospheric fact, it is the coldest day for October 15 in 50 years and on this very day in 1876 it was 30 degrees in Boston, which is icy indeed. Today's temperature was 34 at 7 a. m.

Furthermore, the weather man said that snow flurries were swirling over northern and western New England and that local temperatures would be down to 32 by nightfall.

CIO in New Peace Offer To AFL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 15 (INS)—The Committee for Industrial Organization, by unanimous vote, today replied to the American Federation of Labor's executive committee with a new peace offer.

The CIO offered to send a committee of 10 to meet with a committee of 10 fro mthe A. F. of L. the week of October 25, in Washington, for a preliminary conference which would work out details of a further full meeting, and the number that would attend that meeting.

(The A. F. of L. convention in Denver yesterday took a step toward peace between the two labor organizations by sending a proposal for negotiations to the CIO, replying to the latter's suggestion for a conference to discuss terms under which the feud of the rival groups could be terminated.)

STILL UNCONVINCED

Meanwhile, apparently not convinced of the sincerity of the A. F. of L.'s executive committee, the CIO began considering a resolution to call a national convention to consolidate its nearly 4,000,000 members.

During discussion of this resolution, John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, called upon Phillip Murray, vice-chairman of the CIO and chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, to comment on the A. F. of L.'s telegram.

(The CIO originally suggested a committee of 100 to draft peace terms. The A. F. of L.'s counter-

Confirm Mahoney As Judge

Kelly Blocks Action, Hurley Dashes to Council Session

John V. Mahoney was confirmed as Suffolk probate judge by the executive council today after Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly temporarily blocked action by refusing to preside over the session.

Told his executive secretary's confirmation was being held up, Governor Hurley left his Cambridge home for the State House to preside in Kelly's stead. His arrival made the vote possible and the result stood 7 to 1, Kelly opposing.

When Judge Mahoney's name was placed before the council, Lieutenant-Governor Kelly chose Councillor Edgar S. Lindsay of Brockton to preside and then said:

"I object to voting in favor of Mahoney because of his public record as a legislator, Boston Elevated trustee and as secretary to the governor."

Kelly then refused to take his place as presiding officer.

A brief recess was called to allow the governor to come from his Cambridge home, where he has remained in seclusion with his family since the funeral of his daughter, Sally, yesterday.

Hahn Death List Heard by Jury

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15 (INS)—Wholesale slaughter was charged against Anna Marie Hahn today as Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt delivered his opening statement at her poison murder trial.

The German immigrant woman, Outcalt told a jury of 11 women and one man, "has killed so many men there isn't another human being like her on the face of the earth."

The prosecutor's words brought Anna Hahn's defense attorney, Joseph Hoodin, to his feet in protest. Mrs. Hahn is charged specifically with only one poison death, that of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner.

Judge Bell ruled the state would be permitted to mention "like acts" of the defendant in its opening statement. He gave Prosecutor Outcalt power to justify his term, "biggest mass murder in the history of the country," by recalling numerous deaths in which Anna is under official suspicion.

After defense objection, Outcalt had qualified his opening statement, explaining:

"We expect to prove that within 90 days three men died of arsenic poisoning. That this has been happening over a period of years.

High School Elopers, 17, Found

The elopement of a pretty Brighton high school senior and the boy who carried her books was revealed today.

But a few hours later, the altar-bound young couple were found in Hartford, Ct., apparently unmarried and ready to come home.

LOVE BLOOMS AT SCHOOL

First indication that a love which had bloomed in the halls of Brighton high school for the past two years had blossomed came when Mrs. Rawlings received a surprising 10-word telegram from Hartford.

The message read:

"Larry and I have eloped. Don't worry. Details tomorrow. Love."

On receiving the telegram, which was signed "Helen," Mrs. Rawlings quickly notified the police and a wide search for the young elopers was set in motion.

A belief that the couple were on their way to one of the famous Gretna Greens in Westchester County, beyond the Connecticut line, was dissipated today when a second telegram reached the Rawlings home.

This wire simply stated that the boy and girl were still in Hartford.

BAFFLED BY LAW

Late this morning, Mrs. Rawlings adopted an attitude of strict silence at her home in Bay State road, Back Bay. At the Hacking home, in Hobart road, Newton, the romance of the schoolmates was freely discussed.

Mrs. Hacking said:

"She's a very nice girl and comes from a very nice family. Of course, they have my blessing."

She added, somewhat ominously:

"But I don't know what Lawrence's dad will say."

Mrs. Hacking said her husband was in New York and that she expected to hear from him later in the day.

At the Hacking home it was learned th the couple had met in

Racetrack License Is Restored

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 15 (AP)—The Rhode Island Supreme court today threw out a state racing division order suspending the license of the Narragansett track.

O'Hara issued his statement after a hurried meeting with the track's board of directors. He did not amplify it, merely saying the "unanimous decision makes it possible for the fall meet to be held at Narragansett commencing Monday."

Acting on a petition of the Narragansett Racing Association, which operates the wealthy track, the Supreme Court decided, without dissent, that the association should be released from the division's findings of September 17 suspending the track's license.

Narragansett had a Fall meeting scheduled to open on Monday but earlier Governor Robert E. Quinn had announced the track would not be open.

Governor Quinn, informed of the decision, said he had no statement at this time.

The decision was the second O'Hara victory in the high court. Last month the court threw out a previous racing commission order calling for O'Hara's removal as managing director and president of the track.

Shortage Bared At Hospital

A shortage of $6000 to $7000 in the meat and vegetable accounts of the Westboro State Hospital has been revealed in an audit at the institution, State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley announced today.

Auditor Buckley also declared that the food accounts of the hospital were kept "inefficiently."

"I'll have another statement when I return later in the day," Buckley said.

According to the state auditor, discrepancies in the hospital's meat account was between $5000 and $6000 and another $1000 in the vegetable account.

He denied, however, the report that the alleged shortage was due to food being sold to outside sources.

Dr. Walter E. Lang, hospital superintendent, refused to discuss the case.

Bury Brady's Body In Potter's Field

Undertaker Reads Simple Service, Remains in $10 Pine Box

BANGOR, ME., Oct. 15—It was journey's end in a pauper's grave for "Killer" Al Brady here today as his bullet-riddled body in a $10 white pine box—paid for by the government—was buried in Potter's field.

Unclaimed for the 48-hour period specified by law, the body of the man who sought to ride to riches on the trail of a spitting machine gun was turned over to Malcolm Hayes, local undertaker.

No one was present in the funeral parlor as Hayes read the simple service.

Newspapermen and photographers followed the last trail of the one-time desperado gang leader—to the Mount Hope Cemetery.

The $5000 found on Brady after he was killed together with his henchman, Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., in a G-man trap Tuesday did him no good. It was confiscated by the federal government and instead they paid for his funeral.

GIRL ABSOLVED

Meanwhile, in Bridgeport, federal bureau of identification agents were told by Alicia Frawley, pretty stenographer, that she was the mysterious blonde companion of the dead gang chieftain they had been seeking.

Miss Frawley, said by G-men to have been an unwitting friend of Brady, voluntarily informed them that she had met him when he posed as Ed Mason, an oil salesman, while the gang "holed up" in that city.

She was absolved of any connection with the gang's activities, according to the federal sleuths.

The attractive stenographer said she had met Brady early in September when a friend introduced them on a main street of Bridgeport.

With the much-hunted gangster she attended shows, went to prominent restaurants, bowling alleys and other public places under the noses of police who sought him.

Brady introduced her to Shaffer and James Dalhover, sole survivor of the mob, now in Indiana to face two charges of murder, as Frank and and Charles Harris, she related.

She identified a typewriter found in a rooming house occupied by the gangsters as a machine she had loaned to them.

Further identification came from Pilots Al Zoltack and Al Burnham, of Bridgeport, who told the investigators that they took Brady on several air trips to New York City and other points.

While on the trips, they declared, Brady carried binoculars and a camera and seemed keenly interested in main highways and various prominent landmarks in Connecticut and adjourning States.

It is believed the pint-sized killer was using the plane to plot getaway routes for projected criminal enterprises.

The hunt for three Massachusetts underworld characters and several other New England accomplices of the gang, who were said to have aided them in their plans for a criminal reign of terror in this section, went on today meanwhile.

Meanwhile, back in Indiana Shaffer's body awaited burial today in Indianapolis.

Relatives paid for the transportation of the remains from Bangor after the G-men had released the body.

U. S. TRIAL LOOMS

In Indianapolis, Dalhover was reported apparently unconcerned over his fate, as he sat locked in his cell in Marion County Jail.

As the possibility loomed that the sole survivor of the Brady gang may be tried in federal court for the slaying of State Trooper Paul Minneman, Herold H. Reinecke, head of the Indianapolis G-men, said he was going to question Dalhover "on several matters" before a decision was made.

State Police Captain Walter Eckert, meanwhile, announced that it had been "definitely established" that Dalhover was involved in the slaying of Ohio Highway Patrolman George Conn.

Following Dalhover's capture, it was reported he had confessed to Conn's slaying.

Hahn Jury Told Of Murders

that the plan existing in her mind was to defraud anonymous victims. A witness will show that she heard Anna Hahn say she intended to take the life of Joseph Wagner."

SAYS HE HAS PROOF

"We expect to prove to your satisfaction," Outcalt told the jurors, "that Joseph Wagner, elderly citizen of German extraction, came here in his youth, toiled, and amassed a small competence, and was in good health until May 29, 1937.

"He grew ill on Sunday, worse on Monday, and on Tuesday was taken to the hospital and lived less than ten hours."

The prosecutor then told how the body was exhumed in July for examination, and "disclosed that Wagner died from administered poison commonly fed to rates."

'SOUGHT OLD MEN'

"Evidence," Outcalt said, "will disclose that on May 13, two weeks before, Anna Marie Hahn came into that neighborhood and stopped on the fourth floor of a particular building to ask:

"'Are there any old men living alone here?'

"When the neighbors mentioned old Wagner, 'Oh, that's the man I mean,' and put a note under his door. He had lived there many years and until this woman came into his life, no one so much as entered his home. He had never seen her before May 13 and yet she became a constant visitor, worked her way into his confidence and had the audacity to tell the neighbors she was his niece.

"We will prove beyond a reasonable doubt that all this was for a purpose formulated and put into execution to enrich herself by acquisition of Wagner's life savings."

Son Wins Death Race to Mother

A New York doctor who sped to his dying mother's bedside in Cambridge City Hospital had won a race against death today—only to find that his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Volkman, 55, curator of Harvard's Peabody Museum, was unable to recognize him.

Mrs. Volkman remained unconscious, critically ill, suffering some strange malady doctors have not been able definitely to diagnose.

Her condition is the same as on Wednesday, when she was taken to the hospital after neighbors, alarmed by her continued absence, broke into her apartment in Prescott street, to find her in a coma.

'I'd Kill, Rob Again,' Is Dalhover's Boast

By JAMES DALHOVER
Brady Gangster
(Copyright, 1937)

Hunched on a cot in his cell, James Dalhover, last survivor of the notorious Al Brady gang, today told his story exclusively to Al F. Casse, International News Service staff correspondent, at the Marion county jail in Indianapolis.

Dalhover, who was captured by the same G-men who shot to death Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., at Bangor, Me., exhibits the warped philosophy of the criminal in insisting "crime pays." But with the barred w i n d o w s casting shadows at his feet, and his execution almost inevitable, his own words are more powerful proof than any sermon that "crime does N-O-T pay."

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 15 (INS)—If I could get out of this jail I would do the same thing all over again.

I would live by the law of the heater (gun), just as we did after escaping from the Greenfield, Ind., jail, robbing banks, jewelry stores and other places with money. The average man trying to make an honest living hasn't got a chance nowadays, unless he has the inside track on something good.

However, I guess it's all over now. They've got enough to hang me a couple of times. I understand in this state you must stand trial before they can sentence you to die. Well, I probably would plead guilty if I could get a life sentence, but I guess they won't listen to it.

SAYS CRIME PAYS

I have heard the radio bellow out, night after night, on detective story programs, "Crime does not pay." But crime does pay for a lot of people who are not caught because they avoid the spectacular, daring way of stealing money like we have done in robbing banks.

Crime may have paid for us too, if Brady and Shaffer had not been so flighty. We could have gotten 20 or 30 grand and perhaps skipped the country to England, Australia or Canada. There we could have lived in safety.

While I have no regrets for the life I have lived, I hope my two boys do not follow in my footsteps.

If I could again have a chance to supervise their bringing up, I would see that they had enough spending money, especially in their high school ages. Boys with a reasonable allowance do not steal or get into much trouble.

But if you want to stop having gangs like Dillinger's and ours, get rid of the slums. I bet that more crime is bred in those parts of large cities than anywhere else.

And more criminals get their starts in poolrooms than in all other places combined. The police should clean out poolrooms. Another thing that should be fixed up is your penitentiary system. There's a school of crime for you. The young criminals get post-graduate courses in robbery, safe-blowing and all the other crimes from the older ones.

THOUGHT ROBBERY FUNNY

Looking back one thing stands out as the highlight of our short-lived career of crime. It was the robbery of Partner Bros. jewelry store in Dayton, Ohio, in March, 1936. The whole thing, strange as it may seem, was funny as I look at it now.

We robbed the store of almost $150,000 worth of jewelry from under the very noses of the cops, whose police station was right across the alley. We lost the loot in a Chicago fence, when it was hi-jacked by nine men.

I still believe Jim Venetucci, who was to help us get rid of this hot stuff, cased the job for the raiders.

I noticed he said in Chicago he was glad we were caught. Well, if we ever had met him again, all I can say is that we would have taken care of him. He ought to breathe easier.

A lot of people want to know how I liked a life of roaming to avoid the law. Well, to tell the truth, the only moving about we did was when we raided banks. Outside of that we lived in Baltimore from October, 1936, until August of this year.

Three days after we escaped from the Greenfield jail we went to Baltimore, and after getting married to the Raimondo sisters, Shaffer and I setled down pretty much.

We sort of became domesticated, and only left on occasions to do our work. The Raimondo sisters were fine girls, and din't know what we did. They thought we were lumber men from New England.

Women are the downfall of all criminals, according to the coppers. I guess we were no exceptions, although they were responsible only indirectly for our being caught. You see, Brady got cocky because he could "make" pretty girls easily.

FUN TOO SHORT LIVED

He took unnecessary chances. He appeared in every conceivable public place, and Shaffer and I had to jump him for it. It was this that led him to tell the Raimondo sisters we were from Bangor, Maine, because we had been there several times.

Well, the girls told the G-men—and here I am. And they are dead. I warned Brady to stay away from Bangor, because he had told the girls, but he wouldn't listen to me. Guess I would have been better off if the coppers had clipped me also.

While in Bridgeport, Ct., Brady learned to pilot a plane. If we had pulled that job we cased in Maine, Brady, Shaffer and I would have pulled one with the plane and that really would have made the headlines. It was a bank in California.

All in all, I have no regrets. I had my fun while it lasted, although it didn't last long enough.

Dolan's Profits Probe Speeded By Jurors

Inquisitors Called Into Session For Saturday, Too

District Attorney Foley today called the Suffolk County Grand Jury into special session for tomorrow to complete hearing evidence in the case of former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan.

Dolan already is under court order to return to the city approximately $178,000 from illegal bond transactions.

Six witnesses appeared before the grand jury before noon today, including James H. Collins of Coolidge street, Brookline, alleged to be a former employe of Dolan's Legal Securities Corporation.

A mass of documents, allegedly the records of the Legal Securities Corporation and the bond transactions made with the city under the Dolan regime, were presented to the investigating body by Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle.

OTHER WITNESSES

Others who gave evidence were Roger Fowler and James Gregg, both connected with a State street brokerage house, and Burt Newhall, representative of a Boston bank. Another witness was Ralph Wedgeworth, representing the receivers of the Federal National Bank.

Richard D. Seamans, a certified public accountant, was recalled to the grand jury room three times during the morning. Seamans was engaged by the city in connection with the city's civil suit.

Although refusing to reveal his plans, Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley promised "definite developments" in the city's quest to recover money in the suit.

HOPES TO GET MONEY

"There will be very definite developments in the Dolan case within a week," Foley said. "I can't discuss my plans now but we hope to recover money from another source than the companies which bonded Dolan as city treasurer."

Shortly after Judge Edward F. Hanify's decision in favor of the city, Corporation Counsel Foley demanded payment of $178,000 from two bonding companies.

Under the law, a 20-day period must elapse from the time of the decision until suits may be brought for recovery. This period will be up tomorrow.

Asked if he would proceed tomorrow against the bonding companies, Foley said:

"No, I have other plans now, and I think they will work."

INTEREST SWELLS SUM

"What are those plans?" a reporter asked.

"To collect $178,000 due the city," was the answer.

In Judge Hanify's decision, which was upheld by the State Supreme Court, Dolan was held liable for the principal sum of $131,161.90, plus interest, which raised the total to $178,072.88.

The finding upheld the city's charge that the former city treasurer used the Legal Securities Corporation as a means of "fradulently" making large secret profits.

In its suit, the city charged that the Legal Securities Corporation was a "dummy" concern which Dolan owned and controlled and through which he profited by the sale and purchase of stocks and bonds.

Byrd Calls Pole Air Route Unsafe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd said today he doubted regular flights between Russia and the United States over the route pioneered by Soviet airmen this year would be practical "for some years."

The explorer-flier voiced this view after he and members of his second Arctic expedition received special Congressional Medals from Secretary Swanson at the Navy Department.

"The Russia-America route can be flown only half the year," Byrd said. "Even under otherwise favorable conditions, the problems of ice forming on the wings and the lack of bases are difficult."

"Some time in the future," Byrd said, he plans to give "two more years to exploration," but has not decided on the Antarctic.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel Cushman, 23, of Saranac Lake brought down the first deer in the Adirondack Mountain area as the hunting season opened today.

The huntress shot a 150-pound buck in Wawbeek woods near here. She said it was the first deer she had taken in several seasons.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Miss Velmarie Sanders dreamed she was married in an airplane. She liked the idea, but Alfred Welch, her fiance, didn't.

344,288 Register, Women Control Vote in 5 Wards

With scarcely more than 22,000 more men than women registered for the coming city elections, women control the vote in five of the city's 22 wards.

Final tabulations of those eligible to vote on November 2 were made today, after a final, last-minute surge of citizens seeking to register at the Election Commission last night when registration closed.

A total of 344,288 voters were placed on the polling lists, an increase of 42,120 over the last city election in 1933.

Listed were 183,558 men and 160,730 women voters.

VOTERS INCREASE

In Ward 5 of the Back Bay there are 7860 women and 6085 men voters; in Dorchester Ward 17 there are 8659 women and 8351 men; in Ward 19 in Jamaica Plain 8267 women and 7578 men; in Ward 20 of West Roxbury and Roslindale 10,340 women and 10,053 men, and in Allston-Brighton's Ward 21, 9836 women and 8561 men.

It is the second highest total registration in the city, falling behind the registration of 356,118 voters in the national and state elections last fall.

Since June 7, when registration opened for the city campaign this year, 29,856 voters have been added to the list of 314,431 carried over on the voting list from last year.

Increasing interest in the mayoralty fight, the school committee and council races was demonstrated as 4531 men and women thronged the election committee offices on the closing day to get in under the deadline.

Approximately 150 persons still in the queue that had waited since as early as 9 a. m. to register were permitted to sign the vote list cards after the 10 p. m. deadline.

Almost a score of other citizens, unable to get within the enclosure at the commission's office by the deadline, were turned away.

A woman's ward—Ward 20 in West Roxbury and Roslindale—accounted for the largest number of registered voters this year, with a total of 20,393.

East Boston's Ward 1 was second with 20,356—a scant 37 voters behind the top ward. In third place is Ward 18, Hyde Park, with 20,084 voters, and in fourth position Ward 14, Dorchester, with 20,027.

Needy Children Curley's Chief Concern

Increase in Welfare Allotments Will Be First Move

Boston's undernourished children, members of needy families compelled to accept assistance from the municipal welfare department, will be one of his chief concerns is elected to a fourth term as Mayor, former Governor James M. Curley declared today.

"The past four years have been bitter ones for these little children," he said. "It is my intention upon my return to City Hall next January immediately to increase welfare allotments for families with small children.

"Few people realize the terrible toll that undernourishment has already begun to take of little children of needy families."

Reduction in the number of city departments from 47 to 32 was advocated today by former Representative Alfred Santosuosso, Hyde Park mayoralty candidate.

Nine departments related to the financial administration of the city should be merged and eight others with public work functions should be incorporated, he said.

Santosuosso also pledged himself to a policy of "no-hiring" if elected. Instead of placing additional names on the municipal payroll, vacancies in the city service would be filled by transfers from departments which are now over-manned, he said.

District Attorney William J. Foley today continued his battle against former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, School Committeeman Tobin, and former Governor Curley.

"Election of either Nichols, Tobin or Curley will mean rule of the city by the old clique for the next four years," he said.

"Citizens of Boston who desire sane, honest and efficient government should vote for me. My record as an executive and as a humanitarian in the office of District Attorney of Suffolk County speaks for itself."

Candidates Curley and Nichols collectively have held public office for approximately 75 years, School Committeeman Tobin said last night.

"And those have been years of wasted opportunities to do good," he added.

"My candidacy represents a hope to the citizens of Boston for the future. None of the other candidates has any future and the the people can expect the usual type of political and selfish administration at City Hall if I am not elected."

Jealous Woman In Death Battle

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (INS)—Apparently climaxing an "eternal triangle" gunfire blazed in a downtown hotel today leaving one woman dead and another dying.

Gladys Williams, 30, comely waitress, was riddled with bullets from an automatic pistol fired, police said, by Nell Reynolds, 28, formerly of Houston and Dallas.

Quins Possible For All Women, Doctor Finds

Says New Discovery May Give Rise to Multiple Births

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 15 (INS)—The famed quintuplets of Mrs. Elzire Dionne may became an everyday matter for an ambitious mother, instead of a unique rarity, following the discovery to be announced here tonight by Dr. M. Edward Davis, an obstetrician at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Davis' extended research into the obscure probrems of reproduction among human beings and lower animals was climaxed with the development of a serum, obtained from the blood of pregnant mares, which is capable of inducing fertility in ordinarily sterile women.

Applied in the case of a woman of normal reproductive powers, it may give rise to multiple births, the eminent scientist said.

The announcement of such sweeping progress won the annual award of the National Association of Obstetrics and Gynecology, now meeting in convention here.

"It is now possible to produce ovulation (production of the primitive life-germ cell) in women where it has been unknown before," the 38-year-old research expert stated.

"The use of a Hormone, or glandular secretion, discovered in 1932 in a group of mares, supplies the key to a long-investigated problem. Another valuable use of the new treatment is to induce childbirth in cases where women have sterile husbands. Previously these women had to make several injections of purchased male cells to fertilize themselves—now a treatment with the hormone will assure conception with one injection."

Foreign Control Of Potash Probed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (INS)—Foreign control of American deposits of potash, used extensively in manufacture of munitions, will be subjected to rigid scrutiny by a Senate sub-committee late this month.

The investigation grows out of charges that German and British interests have obtained control of extensive potash deposits in this country which would be highly valuable to the government in event of war.

HELEN.

Search for Helen Rawlings was called off by her parents today after the above wire came from Hartford, Ct., stating that the girl and her intended husband, Lawrence Hacking, 17, of Newton Centre, were in that city. The Rawlings girl, an accomplished toe dancer, met Hacking when they were in Brighton high school.

the classrooms of Brighton High School.

Helen, an accomplished toe dancer, has been a pupil in the Brighton school for two years, having transferred from Belmont.

Lawrence was graduated from the school last June, shortly before the Hacking family moved from Brighton to Newton. He had attended to pursue post-graduate studies at Newton high school this year, but abandoned the plan at the opening of the fall term.

Mrs. Hacking revealed that her son would rather be a husband than a college student. He had planned to enter Dartmouth next September, she said.

'RUN OUT' ON SHOW

Before the rigid censorship on news was clamped down at the Rawlings' home, the girl's mother said the young dancer had "run out" on an exclusive show in which she was to be headlined tonight.

She also admitted Helen had turned down a chance to enroll at a finishing school to be near Larry.

As Mrs. Rawlings moved about the house in a state of excitement, she said:

"I knew the children were very much in love with one another, but I hadn't the slightest idea they would do anything like this.

FELT EACH HAD CAREER

"I felt that each had a career ahead before they took such an unexpected step."

Wizard of Klan Refutes Link With Nazis

Spivak Testimony To State Probers Hit by Evans

Charges that Nazi agents in America are working "hand in glove" with the Ku Klux Klan were denied in Atlanta, Ga., today by Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Klan, as the hearing before a special legislative commission investigating subversive organizations in Massachusetts resumed at the State House.

Testifying before the commission during the past two days, John L. Spivak, former newspaper correspondent, had made charges of a "tie-up" between the Nazi machine and the Klan in spreading anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic propaganda.

Nazi agents in America, he said, are a "lot of fat-headed people."

"It's ridiculous on the face of it!" Evans said. "Nazi agents can do greater good for Germany by leaving other nations alone."

Chinese Battle To Save Art

SHANGHAI, Oct. 15 (AP)—A Japanese army spokesman said today feverish efforts of General Yen Hsi-Shan to save his personal fortune of $10,000,000 in art treasures was the major inspiration of the stubborn Chinese resistance holding up Japan's invasion of Shansi province.

The spokesman said General Yen's fortune was buried at his birthplace, Chuanpi, just south of Yuanping, and he had threatened death to General Wang Chin-Kuo if the Japanese break through before the treasure is moved.

On the other hand, he was said to have promised a reward if the fortune was taken safely away.

31 Saved as French Fishing Boat Sinks

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 15 (AP)—The crew of the Norwegian motorship Tabor, in dock here from Heron, Norway, told a story today of the sinking of the French ship Salve Marie and the rescue of 31 fishermen aboard, in mid-ocean October 5.

The crew of the fishing ship was removed a few hours before she sank, battered by high seas. The Salve Marie was bound from the Greenland fishing banks for France. The Tabor took the rescued men to St. Pierre, off the Newfoundland coast.

Windsor's Visit To U. S. Keeps Old Promise

As King, He Pledged Aid to Poor Welsh Miners' Families

Copyright 1937 by International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—The impending American visit of the Duke of Windsor, it was learned tonight, is definitely one of the important steps toward fulfillment of a promise he made to ragged and desperate Welsh miners soon after he became the British King.

On a tour of the coal fields of his principality of Wales, the new King witnessed with concern the poverty, the miserable housing conditions, the widespread unemployment of the miners and compassionately exclaimed:

"Something will be done."

This statement from the King was received with horror among the old guard Tories and certain high government officials who considered such remarks were far from the traditions of British kingship.

In some informed quarters it is believed that that one statement convinced some powerful personages that King Edward VIII must be checked at all cost. The King's romance seemed to offer an easy avenue to achieve their purpose, and it was not long before the King was forced to choose between his throne and "the woman I love."

He made his choice. He abdicated his throne. He married the American woman who will accompany him here as his duchess. But he never forgot his promise to the Welsh miners whom he had told:

"Something will be done."

And so, four months to the day after his marriage to the former Wallis Warfield, he announced in Paris that he planned tours of Germany and America to study working and housing conditions. He is now pursuing this course in Germany and is soon to sail for America, probably on the Bremen, November 6.

Windsor Spends 90 Minutes in Coal Mine

DUISBURG, Germany, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor spent 90 minutes today crawling around in the coal pits of the Friedrich Heinrich mine on his survey of labor conditions under the Nazi regime.

Some 3000 German miners cheered as the former British monarch, wearing regulation miners' overalls, went down into the pits. The Duchess of Windsor remained at Essen.

The duke emerged from the pit completely black. He observed, smilingly:

"I hope you photographers won't shoot me before I have a chance to clean up. I've never been so black in my life."

Officials said Windsor walked and crawled more than two miles underground. No visitor, they said, had ever asked so many questions, indicating such expert knowledge of the mining industry, as the duke.

'How They Found Me'

Boston Evening American Photo

A re-enactment of sleeping. That's what Thomas Maguire, 5 years old, of Parrot street, Hyde Park, is doing for the benefit of the Boston Evening American photographer. It was in this doorway, not far from Thomas' home, that he was found asleep after police hunted all night for him. He was reported missing early yesterday afternoon.

An all-night search for three missing boys from Hyde Park and Roxbury ended today when all three were found, safe and uninjured, not far from their homes.

Taken home to his parents by police, he was non-committal about his absence. Asked why he didn't come home, he replied:

"I didn't want to."

Vincent Zirakian, four, and Murdock McKenzie, 10, both of Center street, Roxbury, also missing since last night, were found today locked in a room in a chum's house on Green street, Jamaica Plain.

The boys had been playing in the room alone, and did not know that the door had a snap lock on it and could be opened only from the outside.

Mrs. Prior Back In Sherborn As Patient

Woman Slayer's Mind Condition Causes Her Return

Mrs. Grace Prior of Allston, released on indenture after serving six months of an eight-year sentence for manslaughter, is back at Sherborn Reformatory, it was revealed today.

State Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman told the Boston Evening American Mrs. Prior returned there October 8 because of a mental condition and not for a "known violation of any kind."

He revealed that Mrs. Prior went back to Sherborn reformatory September 27 and on the same day was admitted to Boston Psychopathic Hospital for examination on the request of her brother, State Trooper Lewis Bond.

Commissioner Lyman said that the rest of her term at Sherborn "amounts to hospitalization."

Mrs. Prior was sentenced to the reformatory in May, 1936, after she had been convicted of the fatal shooting of George M. Frame, 59, of Beverly, a guest in her mother's Allston home.

She was released last October but it did not become known until last January. She was indentured to her brother, Trooper Bond of Braintree, under a law enacted in 1879, which provided that women inmates may be released "on indenture" to do domestic work and that they are still serving time in the community.

Answering public criticism of her release, Commissioner Lyman said he felt the law had been obeyed "and the best interests of the community served."

He pointed out that under the indenture law he could order her return to the reformatory at any time.

Commissioner Lyman also declared today Mrs. Prior can be released again under the same conditions.

CANTON, O., Oct. 15 (AP)—Four men, found guilty of illegal possession of explosives in connection with the strike at the Republic Steel Corporation last June, were sentenced to from one to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary.

They are Omer Williams, Herman Herzog, Pete Vasleo and Jesse Renteria, all of Massillon. They were found guilty of possessing a home-made bomb of eight sticks of dynamite.

3 Escape Death As Planes Crash

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15 (AP)—Two airplanes collided in the air at Municipal Airport and two pilots and a student escaped death.

Vance Breese, Northrop Aircraft Corporation test pilot, brought a Navy "bullet" to a safe landing despite a bent propeller, torn wing and battered aerial mast. In the other ship, Instructor Ross Sency grabbed the controls from a youthful pupil and landed safely also.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

Damon Runyon

We think it would take a most severe case of amnesia to make us forget as much as three dollars and eighty cents that we had stashed away somewhere for safe keeping, but it seems that there are a lot of persons in this world who are mighty absent-minded about their money.

A famous savings bank in New York City recently advertised a list of 1908 savings accounts that had been dozing on it during the 15 years ending July 1, 1937. At least these accounts had shown no deposit or withdrawal activity in that period, and the bank requested the rightful claimants to kindly step forward and establish proofs of ownership of the dough.

We had some thought of inspecting the list in the remote hope that we might have staggered into the bank while walking in our sleep and slipped a few bobs to the teller, but the mention of the fact that there had been no withdrawal activity caused us to save ourself the trouble.

STRANGE STORIES

There would have been enough withdrawal activity in our account to make the bank officials think the account had a Mexican jumping bean concealed in it.

However, the advertising for the dormant accounts produced some astonishing stories, including the one about the fellow who proved his right to a little matter of $3946 that he said he had "merely forgotten." All the busted horse players on Broadway almost fainted at the "merely."

The forgetful fellow is a New Yorker, too. His account laid there for 16 years, and nearly doubled through interest dividends in the meantime and if we could find that fellow we would rub his head for luck.

WIVES FORGOTTEN

We have heard of fellows who forgot where they left their wives, which is excusable forgetfulness in view of the number of places nowadays where a fellow might leave his wife, but seldom have we heard of a chap forgetting where he left his money.

And this was but one of a number of similar cases, we understand, although of course the bank did not come even close to equalling the record for discoveries of cases of absent-mindedness about money that has been established by Mr. Helvering down in Washington.

Mr. Helvering is the head of the income tax department of this government. It is said that every year when Mr. Helvering unveils the income tax reports of his fellow-citizens, he discovers an amazing amount of absent-mindedness on the part of the citizens about their money. We are told that Mr. Helvring is commencing to think that this is a nation of mental woolgatherers.

He has to keep sending his assistants around to nudge the citizens and remind them about money of theirs that they must have forgotten. At least many of them forget to speak of this money in their income tax returns, and Mr. Helvering is charitable enough to believe that this is nothing more than a mental lapse.

99 YEARS OLD

There is one unclaimed account in the savings bank that was opened 99 years ago, but it is not thought that the provident fellow who opened it would have any use for it right now.

Maybe the depositor was a nice young fellow who was saving up to buy his girl an engagement ring, and who would have been happily married if he had remembered about the account, but who passed away of a broken heart when his girl, thinking him penurious, ran off with the other fellow.

The only drawback to this theory is that a search of the mortuary records of New York City for a great many years past fails to disclose any young fellow dying of a broken heart for such a reason. Still we feel that the idea has romantic appeal.

Of course, there is the possibility that the depositor went on to make so much sugar that he really could not keep track of small change, but there is no color to this theory.

We wonder about the owner of the unclaimed account that started with $775 and has grown to $7048, but only briefly. That $775 sounds like a sum a fellow would hold out on his wife at the rate of, say, $10 per week. Maybe he did not forget it. Maybe he just fled the country when she discovered that he had been knocking down on her.

SURE DEATH TO BED BUGS

To kill bed bugs, their eggs and young, use Peterman's Discovery. All-purpose insecticides can't do the job as well. Spray Discovery into all cracks in wall and floor. Put it in mattress seams, bed springs, behind baseboards, moldings, wherever bed bugs breed and hide. Bugs suck it in and die. 25c, 35c and 60c a can, at your druggist's.

Civic and Business Leaders Pay Tribute to G. W. Mitton

Jordan Marsh Head's 50 Years in Firm Lauded at Dinner

More than 200 of Boston's leading citizens paid tribute last night to George W. Mitton, chairman of the board of directors of Jordan Marsh Company, at a dinner at the Algonquin Club in celebration of his 50 years with the company.

A complete cross-section of the city's business, social and political life was represented with former governors, industrialists, department store heads and judges in attendance.

Mr. Mitton entered the employ of Jordan Marsh Company as a stock-boy in 1887. He rose successively to salesman and merchandise manager to a vice-presidency of the company in 1913. Three years later he became president and held the post until 1930, when he retired to become chairman of the board.

A loving, filial tribute was paid to the guest of honor by the toastmaster, Edward R. Mitton, who succeeded his father as the company president.

PROUD TO BE HIS SON

"We have known him, loved him and worked with him for many years," President Mitton said. "I am proud to be his son."

In introducing Judge John V. Mahoney, who represented Governor Charles F. Hurley, the toastmaster asked for a moment of silent tribute to the brave little daughter of the governor, Sally Hurley, whose funeral was held yesterday.

Judge Mahoney paid high tribute to Jordan Marsh Company and George W. Mitton, who guided its destinies through many of its years.

"Jordan Marsh Company is really an institution," Judge Mahoney said.

"I know that if the governor could be here tonight he would express his regards for George W. Mitton and his great institution. May God grant you, Mr. Mitton, a long, a happy and a prosperous life."

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield traced the growth of Boston and the nation in the years which Mr. Mitton had spent with the company.

WOULD FILL GARDEN

"There are many political dinners but seldom are there dinners for great men such as Mr. Mitton. This gathering represents the entire life of the city and state. We have but limited space but George Mitton's friends would easily fill Boston Garden and his acquaintances would overflow Boston Common.

"When he came to Jordan Marsh Company, Boston had but one-half its present 800,000 population and the nation had but 38 states. As long as Boston has men like George Mitton, we need have no fears for the future. He represents the bone and sinew which has built Boston into a great city. Boston is honored in counting Mr. Mitton among its citizens."

Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, also paid high tribute to the guest of honor. He said that Mr. Mitton had seen the store weather the great business depressions of 1893, 1907, the World War and the business lows that followed 1929.

"He has steered this great institution successfully," Wadsworth said. "He has built its reputation throughout the entire nation. His story is truly the story of the stock-boy who came to become president."

Another speaker was P. A. O'Connell, president of the Retail Trade Board, and owner of the E. T. Slattery Company.

Mr. O'Connell said, "Honesty, fair dealing and sound judgment best describe the attributes of Mr. Mitton in his many years as a Boston business leader."

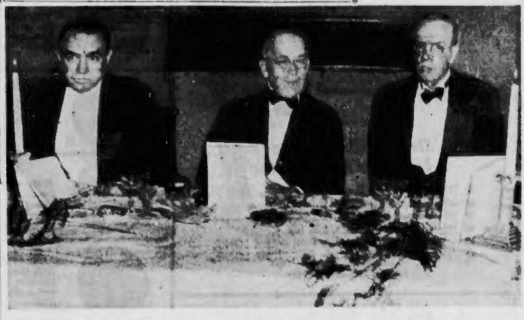
LEADERS PAY TRIBUTE

Among the many others who were present were, former Governors Channing Cox and Alvan T. Fuller, Leverett T. Saltonstall, Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Trade Board; Burnelle G. Hawkins, Jordan Marsh store manager; Vice-Presidents William Everett and Cameron Thompson of Jordan Marsh; Park Commissioner William P. Long, Sidney Conrad of Conrad's, Edward J. Frost, vice-president of William Filene & Sons; John Shepard, Jr., and Robert Shepard, of Shepard's Store; Adolph, Richard and William Ehrlich of Hovey's; Harvey P. Hood of H. P. Hood Company; John T. Lambert, associate publisher of the Boston Evening American, and John J. Cremmen, advertising director of the Boston Evening American.

Others included: Benjamin Raphael of R. H. White Company; Walworth Pierce of S. S. Pierce Company; Arthur T. Race of the Copley-Plaza Hotel; A. C. Ratshesky, president of the United States Trust Company, and Robert Mitton of Jordan Marsh Company.

Others were: James C. Duane, president of First National Stores; Clinton L. Dorr of Raymonds; George Hansen, president of Chandlers; G. F. Johnson, vice-president of Chandlers; Louis K. Liggett of the United Drug Company; Harold McNeil of Thayer McNeil Company; David E. Moeser of Conrad's; Arthur H. Rogow of Sears Roebuck Company; William L. Shearer, 3rd, of Paine Furniture Company; Frank W. Stearns of R. H. Stearns Company; S. C. Stapleman, president of the Gillette Razor Company; Felix and Frank Vorenberg of Gilchrist Company; Sinclair Weeks, Norman I. Adams, Charles G. Bancroft, Bruce S. Black, Thomas S. Carens, Raymond B. Cox, Albion Danforth, Francis Ouimet, Chandler Hovey, Neal Rantoul, Charles F. Weed, Powell Cabot, John T. Cushing and many others.

50 Years Of Work Well Done



EDWARD R. MITTON GEORGE W. MITTON MAYOR MANSFIELD

Glowing tribute for his 50 years' service in Jordan Marsh Company was paid George W. Mitton, center, at a dinner at the Algonquin Club last night. State, city and business leaders all lauded the career of the firm's chairman of the board. With him is his son, Edward R. Mitton, left, Jordan Marsh president, and Mayor Mansfield, right.

Dying, Ex-Banker Granted Pardon

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15 (INS)—Believed in imminent danger of death, Kenyon V. Painter, 71, former largest stockholder of the Union Trust Company, Cleveland, was granted a pardon by Governor Martin L. Davey from Ohio penitentiary, where he was serving a one to 20-year term for misapplication of bank funds.

Committed to the penitentiary June 28, 1936, Painter, former African big game hunter, has been suffering with myocarditis since that time, physicians said.

Girl Annoyer Dies in Chair

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP)—Peter Chrisoulas died in the electric chair at Cook County Jail today for the slaying of Irving Fehlberg, theater manager, March 14, 1936.

Shortly before being led into the execution chamber, he was visited by the Rev. Gabriel Mathopoulos, pastor of the Assumption Greek Orthodox Catholic Church, and Rev. Albert E. Selcer, the jail chaplain.

He was convicted of killing Fehlberg after the latter questioned him about a small girl's complaint that she had been annoyed by him.

Boiler Explodes, Janitor Aide Hurt

An assistant janitor was painfully burned today when a boiler exploded in the basement of an apartment house in Burbank street, Back Bay.

Firemen, summoned by an excited tenant, found no blaze or other damage in the cellar. The victim, David Muth, 22, of Foster street, Brighton, was treated at Boston City Hospital for first degree burns of the face and hands.

Blow With Cane Kills Man in Charlestown

Tells of Attack by Stranger When He Was With Girl

As police sifted conflicting stories by witnesses to a vicious attack on a Somerville man, the victim, George F. Terrill, 28, of Perkins street, died today in Haymarket Relief Hospital.

All that investigators have been able to establish is that Terrill succumbed to a heavy blow on the head.

STRUCK WITH CANE

In a death-bed statement, Terrill allegedly told police he was walking along Haverhill street, Charlestown, with Miss Gladys H. Oxner of Perkins street, Charlestown, when he was attacked by an acquaintance of the girl.

A man greeted by Miss Oxner, he said, struck him across the head with his cane.

CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE

Terrill was treated in a nearby house, he said, and later returned to his automobile, which was parked nearby. Some time afterward, he was removed to the hospital.

While his narrative is corroborated by the girl's story, police said, the alleged acquaintance tells a sharply contradictory story.

This man, also a resident of Perkins street, Somerville, said that he struck Terrill in self-defense when the latter tried to invade his home.

Women Injured In Strike Clash

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 15 (INS)—Twelve women were injured, none seriously, and eight others were under arrest today following a clash between strikers and workers at a garment plant at Riverside, near here.

Scratching, tearing of clothes and hair-pulling featured the melee. The plant employs 120 women.

Key to Auto Delays Plane

Clipper Skipper's Wife Gets It

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (INS)—As the great-winged Hawaii Clipper prepared to take off with the first shipment of anti-tetanus serum sent by the American Red Cross to war-stricken China, the plane's motors turned down.

Captain J. H. Tilton, in command, saw his wife running breathlessly toward the ship, while nine passengers waited for the takeoff. Captain Tilton shouted over the idling motors:

"What's the matter?"

"The key," shouted Mrs. Tilton, "to our automobile! You've got it! And I want it!"

Asturias Leader Refugee in France

L'ORIENT, France, Oct. 15 (AP)—The governor of the Spanish province of Asturias was among a shipload of refugees which arrived here today. The refugees had fled from the Insurgent army advancing on Gijon, Asturian port on the Bay of Biscay.

The governor's flight was interpreted in political circles as meaning that the Valencia forces had abandoned all hope of saving the last territory of the Republican Government in Northwest Spain.

Proctor Enters Green Quiz

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 15 (AP)—Massachusetts cross examiners today attacked a witness' story that Colonel E. H. R. Green purposely failed to live in that state a portion of each year, to avoid being declared a citizen of Massachusetts.

Massachusetts, Florida, New York and Texas seek to establish the legal home of the millionaire son of Hetty Green. Some $6,000,000 in taxes is the prize.

Dr. N. D. Buie of Marlin, Tex., Green's personal physician, said the colonel refused to stay in Massachusetts the year round for the express purpose of avoiding Massachusetts citizenship. Massachusetts Assistant Attorney-General Edward P. Proctor said he would "go thoroughly" into the story.

Mayor Demands Codman Report Be Released

The battle of Codman Hill flared anew today as a result of the Finance Commission's decision to withhold its White Fund investigation report until after the forthcoming mayoralty election.

Creating a controversy between Chairman David Lasker and the four other members of the commission, the decision was bitterly assailed by Mayor Mansfield, who demanded immediate publication.

The mayor ridiculed the commission's given reason that release of the report at this time might create political capital for some of the candidates, asserting:

"There has been enough playing around in this matter to date. I demand that they release the report now."

He pointed out that the reason was inadequate in light of four previous reports on the investigation made public by Special Investigator George R. Farnum.

The determination not to issue the report was made yesterday before Lasker, who had called the meeting, could return from the funeral of Sally Hurley, eight-year-old daughter of the governor.

Lasker is a Hurley appointee to the committee and the others are designees of Former Governor Curley.

Police List Fraud Laid To 5 Headed by Woman

A bizarre alliance of a Charlestown politician's wife, two policemen, a former bootlegger and an official in the Charlestown Navy Yard was at least partly responsible for wholesale padding of Ward 2 police lists, probers said today.

Handwriting experts engaged in the investigation of Boston's first major election frauds had already turned information over to the district attorney and police commissioner today, sufficient to indict at least these five.

Specimens of a woman's handwriting has been found on several of the police cards, all the identical script.

All involved are supporting the same candidate for mayor, indicating a scandal that may blast open the mayoralty contest before election day, November 2.

SPURRED BY TIMILTY

Special police investigators attacked their problem of ferreting out those members of the department allegedly responsible for the "mattress" vote listings today, under promise of promotion and a $1000 reward offered personally by Commissioner Timilty.

"I will personally offer $1000 to the citizen who gives me information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who perpetrated this fake police listing," was Timilty's terse declaration.

A special session of the grand jury will be called as soon as evidence enough to warrant substantial indictments against those involved has been obtained, District Attorney Foley said today.

CLEAN BILLS FOR WARDS

Various downtown sections including the Back Bay, Beacon Hill, West End, the South Boston division, Roxbury crossing, Brighton, Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury have been exonerated in the police probe.

At first it was suspected the vote frauds might have extended into those locations.

However, officers are still checking the police lists compiled in other sections of the city.

"We expect this checkup to be completed some time tomorrow. Nothing wrong has been found in any other division to date," said Timilty.

False registrations already uncovered there center about the Thompson square district, near state's prison. More than 225 police listings in that vicinity have already been established as fraudulent, with as many as 50 more under suspicion.

"I told Capt. Mullen that he was at least in part responsible for the situation because he was the commanding officer at that time. I also told him that he is to devote his entire efforts and do all within his power toward breaking this case," Timilty declared.

New Television Improvement

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—Television was made available to sizable audiences for the first time with a demonstration of a projector which will throw the moving images on a screen the size of a standard newspaper page several feet away.

Hitherto, it was explained by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, the vision appeared direct on the receiving apparatus, with its largest size 7 x 10 inches.

Made possible by a newly-developed cathode ray tube, the projection is as clear as an excellent photographic enlargement, television scientists said.

BULLETIN

TOKYO, Oct. 15 (INS)—The British government protested to Japan today against the attack on three British embassy automobiles in China by six Japanese war planes. The formal protest was handed to Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota by British Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie.

NANKING, Oct. 15 (AP)—United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson today forwarded to the State Department at Washington a copy of the protest of the American community of Szechwan province against Japanese aggression in China.

The protest urged the United States to use every peaceful means to withdraw moral and material support from Japan. It declared American scrap iron becomes Japanese bombs which kill civilians, American cotton makes Japanese explosives, American trucks transport Japanese troops and American oil drives Japanese plants and tanks.

"Let no specious neutrality repeat our World War profiteering," the protest said.

Broadcasting to the United States today, Wang Chung Hui, the Chinese minister, appealed to the American people not to resort to any action that would help Japan, which, he declared, was trying to rob China of the right to exist.

"Peace in the Far East is now shattered," he said, "because Japan is bent on destroying China's freedom as the first step toward her domination of Asia and mastery of the Pacific.

"China happens to be the first line of defense and we are determined to hold out at all costs. The Japanese army is now using poison gas at Shanghai where she has failed to break the Chinese resistance.

"Held in an iron grip by her militarists, Japan is playing with the dangerous illusion of her divine destiny to rule over Asia."

Battles Raging In Two Sectors

SHANGHAI, Oct. 15 (AP)—An intense battle raged today in the Chapei and Hongkew sectors, where the Chinese armies were making a bitter counter thrust to stave off the long expected Japanese general attack along the 25-mile battle front northwest of Shanghai.

Three Japanese civilians were killed and three wounded, a Japanese spokesman announced, during the Chinese shelling of Hongkew, the Japanese-occupied sector of the international settlement.

Arabs Kill 2 Britons at Bethlehem

Palestine Terrorists Dynamite Trains, Fire on Buses

JERUSALEM, Oct. 15 (AP)—Guerrilla bands of Arabs struck new terror in the Holy Land today, and two young British policemen fell in a pre-dawn ambush on the Bethlehem road.

Constables Norman Harrison and Austin Malia were added to the list of dead, which already included four Arabs. Twelve Jews had been injured in the last two days.

Authorities were expected to declare a nightly curfew and possibly proclaim martial law. One thing was certain—that the recent banishment of members of the Arab higher committee had not halted terrorism. The guerrilla bands apparently were functioning in a well knit organization.

The old quarters of Jerusalem were blanketed with military detachments. All civilians were being searched for weapons.

The two British constables were shot to death in spectacular skirmish with a large band of armed Arabs near Bethlehem.

Before dawn, authorities learned of the concentration of an armed gang on the main road to Bethlehem near Solomon's Pool and rushed four carloads of police to the scene.

The officers were equipped with Lewis guns and searchlights. Heavy rifle fire from both sides of the ancient highway greeted them.

The Arabs lay behind protecting boulders on the hillsides while the police were exposed to their cross-fire under the moonlight. The band, however, took flight after the first exchange.

British soldiers deployed throughout terrorized Palestine today determined to smash new and widespread outbreaks of guerilla warfare. Introduction of martial law was considered likely.

Britain Warns She'll Fight

LONDON, Oct. 15 (INS)—A solemn warning that Britain knows how to fight, though she bears no malice, was laid before the world today by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in a vital pronouncement on the Mediterranean crisis resulting from Spain's civil war.

"We have no sinister designs against anybody," he declared. "But if we are attacked we shall know how to defend ourselves as we always have done in the past."

Britain, France Plan Showdown With Duce

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Britain and France, determined to make no more major concession to Italy, planned procedure today for a showdown with Premier Mussolini on the question of withdrawing his armies from Spain.

The climax of 15 months of effort to confine the civil war to Spain will come when the nine-nation sub-committe of the London nonintervention committee meets tomorrow in an atempt to agree on a plan to remove thousands of foreigners fighting in Spain.

France's patience with Mussolini's delaying tactics were plainly at an end. The British were more reserved. But the London-Paris allies stood agreed to speedy countermeasures to restore "the balance in Spain" if the sub-committee's deliberations prove fruitless.

British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, in another of his frequent indirect pleas to Il Duce to bury the hatchet, said:

"We have the shortest memory for quarrels of any nation in the world, but if we are attacked we should know how to defend ourselves as we always have done in done in the past, but it is not in the temperament of our people to bear malice."

Jews Are Saved In Polish Riot

LWOW, Poland, Oct. 15 (AP)—Former Premier Kazimir Bartel, who has resumed the university chair of geometry from which he resigned in 1930, saved several Jewish students from thrashings today in rioting precipitated by their segregation.

Bartel's intervention in the clash been Jewish and Gentile students did not come, however, until after 14 Jewish students, including one girl, were injured.

President Sees Mediation for China Strife

Expects 9-Powers to Take Such Action At Conference

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 15 (INS)—President Roosevelt declared today that an attempt would be made to mediate Sino-Japanese differences and end the undeclared war in the Orient at the conference of signatories of the nine-power treaty—to which, the President pointed out, the United States as yet has not received an official invitation.

The Executive made these statements at a press conference in the study of his Hudson River home. He was reluctant to discuss the international situation.

Asked whether he would propose modification of existing neutrality legislation at the coming special session of Congress, the President declined to discuss the matter.

The President said he had been in constant touch with Washington, but warned that any stories on America's future foreign policy would be pure guesswork.

The President declined to comment on the slump in the stock market, but indicated he might have something to say on the subject to Congress in November.

Joseph P. Kennedy, head of the Maritime Commission, was a luncheon guest at Hyde Park today. He discussed problems incident to rebuilding of the American Merchant Marine with the President.

Air Raids Mark Spain Fighting

VALENCIA, Oct. 15 (INS) — Loyalist aerial armada today raided the insurgent airdrome at Garrapinillos, in Saragossa province, destroying more than 30 airplanes, an official communique said.

MADRID, Oct. 15 (AP)—A large section of Infiesto, on Gijon's southeastern front, was in flames today and Gijon itself was greatly damaged, the result of two insurgent air raids yesterday.

About the same time, insurgent airmen attacked Cartagena, Barcelona and Valencia, government cities on the eastern coast, causing heavy damage and casualties.

The raid on Gijon was the most disastrous in its weeks of defense against the insurgent offensive to drive the government out of northwest Spain. More than 50 buildings were destroyed. Water and transport services were damaged, and the center of the city was a mass of debris after the explosion of hundreds of bombs.

List Bostonian Spain Captive

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade office today made public names of 21 Americans whom they listed as captured in Spain by Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent troops.

The Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade is an organization in sympathy with the Spanish government cause.

The brigade now numbers 3000 Americans fighting as a unit on the side of the Spanish Loyalists, and to date 125 have been killed, Phil Bard, secretary of the organization, said.

Among the 18 listed was George Leap, Boston.

High War Council Created in Tokyo

TOKYO, Oct. 15 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito today sanctioned the establishment of a supreme council to guide the destinies of Japan in the undeclared war with China. The government formally appointed ten members to the council.

Kahn Again Will Direct Jewish Aid

MILTON KAHN

Appointment of Milton Kahn as chairman of the 1937-38 campaign of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies was announced by Louis E. Kirstein, president, at a dinner-meeting of the campaign officers and leaders of trade and professional groups at the Hotel Touraine.

Former chairman of the Business Men's Council, a trustee of the Associated, and a director of many of its constituent agencies, Kahn assumes chairmanship for the second year.

Dr. B. M. Selekman, executive director of the Associated, and Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky, director of the Beth Israel Hospital, stressed the greater needs of the 16 welfare and health agencies constituting the Associated Jewish Philanthropies. Sidney Rabinovitz, former campaign chairman, and Casper M. Grosberg, treasurer, were among the speakers.

CAMPAIGN OPENS OCT. 31

Announcement was made by Kahn, who presided, that the annual campaign for the support of these agencies for human needs will be inaugurated officially Sunday evening, October 31, at a dinner for campaign workers at the Hotel Somerset.

The annual community banquet, which opened the Associated drives in previous years, will mark the closing of the campaign this year. This event will take place Sunday evening, November 21, at the Hotel Statler.

Plans for a series of trade and professional team meetings during the next two weeks preparatory to the launching of the campaign were outlined at last night's meeting by Charles S. Cohen, chairman of the Business Men's Council, and Samuel L. Ginsburg, chairman of trade organizations.

SETS 1930-31 AS STANDARD

"Encouraging as was last year's total, it has failed to return to that standard of giving established in 1930 and 1931.

"After three years of recovery, the 1937-38 campaign opening this month is a challenge to the community to contribute again a sufficient amount to support adequately the scores of social and health services made possible through the Associated Jewish Philanthropies."

The 1937-38 campaign officers, headed by Kahn, consist of Joseph Cohn, headquarters chairman; Samuel L. Ginsburg, trade organization chairman; Gabriel M. Stern, publicity chairman; Jacob L. Wiseman, speakers bureau chairman; Max E. Wyzanski, treasurer, and the following executive committee: Max E. Bernkopf, Charles S. Cohen, I. A. Diamondstone, A. A. Ginzber, Mortimer Gryzmish, Reuben B. Gryzmish, Samuel Langer, Max Lipson, Samuel Markell, Henry Penn, Norman S. Rabinovitz, Sidney Rabinovitz, David L. Rosenberg, Isidor Slotnik, Oscar Sterman, Arthur C. Stern, F. Frank Vorenberg, David M. Watchmaker and Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky.

4000 Bankers Quit Boston For Homes

Convention Revealed Their Worries in New Deal Bills

The four-day convention at the Hotel Statler concluded, nearly 4000 members of the American Bankers Association from all over the country started on their way back home today.

The convention officially closed yesterday noon, following the induction of new officers at the Majestic Theater, but several hundred of the bankers are staying for the Bankers' Annual Golf Tournament, held today at the Salem Country Club.

Despite the prevalent note of optimism found among the bankers, several bitter attacks made at the convention against the New Deal revealed that the bankers are still worried over what the new policies of the present administration may do to the banking business.

A resolution passed yesterday by the convention put the group on record as being opposed to bills, now being considered by Congress, which would bring branch banking within federal reserve districts.

FEAR MONEY MONOPOLY

The bankers claim that this bill would be the first step toward permitting monopolized branch banking throughout the country, which would allow one large bank to acquire a monopoly on America's money.

Reporting for the Economic Policy Commission of the group, Leonard P. Ayres, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company stated:

"In the recent years of the recovery period, the banks as a whole have regained a gratifying stability of earning power.

"Earnings are now being derived from sources that are materially changed from those that were normal in former years, but they have rapidly increased as business recovery has progressed.

SEEK CUT IN EXPENSES

"There seems to be real possibility that the earning power of banks will continue to be characterized by reliable stability."

In their resolutions, the bankers called upon the New Deal to "balance the budget" and to reduce government expenditure.

The convention elected Orval Adams of Salt Lake City as their new president, succeeding Tom Smith of St. Louis, who held the office during the past year.

M. H. Malott, president of the Citizens Bank of Abilene, Kansas, was elected treasurer of the association, and Dr. Harold Stonier, executive manager, at a meeting of the executive council yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Stonier succeeds F. N. Shepard, who had previously announced he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Fire School Opens In Boston Monday

All phases of fire prevention and control will be discussed by experts, and firemen from all sections of Metropolitan Boston may join.

Italy Sentences 17 Communists

ROME, Oct. 15 (INS)—Seventeen alleged communists have been sentenced to prison terms ranging from 18 years to 18 months today after "the largest Communist cell in Fascist history" was smashed.

The cell was broken in a series of raids in Bologna and elsewhere but three members escaped. Nine of 14 others seized in a previous raid received long prison terms yesterday.

Danger Expert Hurt

Conklin to Sell Home of Tragedy

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15 (AP)—As the aftermath of the tragic ending of an unusual film romance, the hillside home of Chester Conklin, veteran screen comedian, will be sold at auction next Monday.

In 1934, Conklin took as his bride Margherita Rouse, who for 23 years had been crippled with arthritis. His devotion to his wife became a Hollywood legend. Last May she died. Finding the nine-room home lonely, Conklin today ordered it sold.

Fellows Resting, Gains in Illness

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Oct. 15 (AP)—Dexter Fellows, who spent 42 of his 66 years "ballyhooing" circuses, and who now is confined to a hospital by an attack of influenza, was reported resting "fairly well" today.

Firemen Stay Idle

GUYMON, Okla. (AP)—The Guymon fire department has had no fires to fight and has not even been called out on a false alarm since February.

Love Blind? Not For This Couple

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Oct. 15 (AP)—So love is blind, huh? It wasn't to the young couple who lined up before the county drivers' license examining bureau, and watched applicants take eye-sight tests.

Said he:

"What's an eye test got to do with getting a marriage license, anyhow?"

Then they found they had been directed to the drivers' license instead of the marriage license bureau.

Carnegie Art 1st to Braque

French Painter Wins $1000 Award

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15 (AP)—An "abstraction" by Georges Braque, French painter, was announced winner of the $1000 first prize in the 35th international exhibition of paintings at Carnegie Institute today. Braque calls his work "The Yellow Cloth."

In-so-far as it resembles anything, it seems to be a gray, green, yellow canvas representing a table standing in a bilious looking room, the table loaded with a complicated still life composed of a couple of apples, a bottle, something like a spook, and a basket in which reposes a receptacle which may be an empty olive bottle. prize awards: Peter Blume's "South of Scranton," and Franklin Watkins' "Suicide in Costume."

Episcopal Move To Increase Salaries

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15 (AP)—An arraignment of clergymen who "worshipped at the altar of Mammon" prompted a movement in the Protestant Episcopal church today to increase the salaries of underpaid priests.

This subject came to the fore at the church's triennial convention after legislation had been enacted to make the presiding bishop the supreme spiritual and temporal power of the church.

The house of deputies approved, and sent to the house of bishops for concurrence, a resolution to set up a joint commission which would survey salaries of the clergy and recomend to the 1940 convention how "the present unequal remunerations may be adjusted."

The Rev. Oscar F. Green, of Palo Alto Calif., who introduced the resolution, declared that "this disparity of income" is "jeopardizing our missionary program."

The problem also demands attention, he said, because "all of us think too much of money. We do not stay on the job where we are most useful, but we strive to find a place of higher pay.

"Because we have built up a false notion of success, disregarding the ideal of Jesus who told us to seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness first, in our hearts we have envied those with large salaries and worshipped at the altar of Mammon."

proposal agreed to enlarge the federation's three-man standing committee to a "reasonable" size, but held a 100-man committee was "impracticable.")

Murray replied to Lewis:

Whereupon Lewis said:

"You might correct Matty Woll's English."

Murray agreed:

"Don't you think it was written under great emotional stress?" Inquired Lewis.

Murray in his further remarks made it emphatic that he was talking to the nation. He said:

"We want the nation to know we are sincere in our offer of labor unity. We did not suggest 'a return to the fold.' We did suggest a meeting to discuss unity, with due recognition for the CIO'S principles of industrial unionism in mass production industries. We stand squarely on that."

CALL CONVENTION

The resolution for a national convention of the CIO to consolidate its membership was passed.

"The organization of approximately 1,000,000 workers in 32 national and industrial unions and 600 local industrial unions establishes the necessity for the creation of machinery to consolidate the situation," the resolution stated.

Elsewhere the resolution said:

"The executive officers of the CIO are authorized to call the national and international unions, local and industrial unions, and city and state industrial councils to a national convention."

During discussion of the resolution, Murray said:

"When we were first formed, we planned to organize all the unorganized workers and then present them to the A. F. of L. But the present A. F. of L. policy is that no one who belongs to the CIO can go into the A. F. of L., so we had to form our own organization."

A. F. L. Leader Sees Peace "Possibilities"

DENVER, Oct. 15 (AP)—George Harrison, chairman of the American Federation of Labor's peace committee, said today that the CIO's latest peace proposal "looked like it had possibilities."

William Green, A. F. of L. president, refused to comment on newspaper reports of the Committee for Industrial Organization's proposal to send 10 representatives to Washington, the week of October 25, to discuss the basis of further peace negotiaitons with a committee of the same size from the A. F. of L.

Green said he would reserve comment until he had received the CIO's telegram.

Ulster Declines DeValera Bid

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 15 (AP)—Acting Premier John M. Andrews, in answer to Eamon De Valera's campaign to bring Ulster into the Irish Republic, declared today:

"We will never yield or betray our birthright.

"I tell him today he will be disappointed. We will ever remain citizens of the United Kingdom and the Empire. Act as he may, De Valera will find the loyalists will stand firm.

"We do not care about his propaganda drive, and it will not influence us. I do not believe Britain will ever desert us."

Soviets Dismiss New Officials In Purge

Magazine Hits Chief Of Retail Trade on Embezzlement

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Soviet Union's drive to improve its economy and stamp out alleged subversive tendencies in high official circles today brought an editorial attack on its commissar of home trade and removal of the premier of an autonomous republic.

I. Y. Veitzer, commissar in charge of retail trade, was attacked in the magazine Soviet Trade purportedly for allowing embezzlement and plundering as well as [illegible].

D. D. Dorzheeff, premier, and A. I. Gross, vice-premier of Buryat Mongolian Republic, were removed from their posts along with S. M. [illegible], the republic's representative at Moscow.

Dorzheeff and a man named Yerbanoff, former secretary of the Buryat Communist Committee, were expelled from the party as enemies of the people. Yerbanoff was accused of heading a gang of Nationalists.

Veitzer was held responsible for conditions under which stores were stocked with overcoats in the summer and bathing suits in the winter.

The retail turnover is falling short of schedule, the magazine said, blaming grafters and wreckers and [illegible] said Veitzer showed indulgence despite [illegible]."

Ponselle Has Tiff on Stage

Tweaks Pianist's Ear After Music Error

ATLANTA, Oct. 15 (AP)—Rosa Ponselle's soprano voice rose and fell in Tschaikowsky's "Adieu Forets" as a hushed concert audience listened last night. Suddenly the Metropolitan star stopped and said to her pianist, Stuart Ross, "You're on the wrong key."

But Ross replied, "No, I'm not."

Then while the audience became tense Miss Ponselle consulted the music board of the piano and announced, "You've got the contralto copy." Ross hurried backstage to retrieve the soprano score. A wave of laughter rolled over the audience until he returned. He resumed playing and the soprano finished her number a la soprano. She tweaked his ear.

Farley Evades Candidacy Quiz

SEATTLE, Oct. 15 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley breezed through Seattle today dedicating a new branch post office and making two brief public addresses.

At his press conference attended by President Roosevelt's daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, and her husband, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Farley was asked:

"Can we depend upon you as a presidential candidate in 1940?"

"The Democrats will be just as strongly entrenched after the 1938 elections as they are now," Farley answered. "That will continue, and the Democratic candidate will be elected by a substantial margin in 1940."

4 Women Fined $400 in Birth Control Case

Jury-Waived Session Hears Counsel for Salem Defendants

SALEM, Oct. 15—Four women defendants in the so-called Massachusetts birth control test case were found guilty and fined $100 each by Judge Wilfred Gray in Superior Court here today in a jury-waived session.

The defendants, charged with possession and sale of illegal articles, were Mrs. Caroline Gardner, wife of a prominent Salem physician; Dr. Lucille Lord Heinstein, Mrs. Flora Band, a nurse, and Mrs. Pamelia Ferris of Salem.

Mrs. Ferris had been secretly indicted while the three other defendants had appealed a decision by the district court, where each was also fined $100.

HEALTH OFFICE RAIDED

The case grew out of a police raid on the North Shore Mothers Health Office June 3 in which articles, pamphlets and records were seized.

In imposing the fines, Judge Gray suspended payment until the exceptions, filed by counsel for the defendants, were heard by the Supreme Court.

Judge Gray, in his decision, declared:

"I haven't any doubt that the majority of the people in this state are against birth control in any form.

Witnesses Link Beauty To Slayer of 2 Police

ABINGTON, Oct. 15—Esther L. Chase, attractive 22-year-old waitress of Greylock road, Allston, accompanied Edward P. Simpson, accused slayer of two Newton policemen, on a series of gay automobile rides both before and after the $8500 holdup of Sam's Nantasket restaurant, it was testified today in Abington Court.

The girl is charged with being an accessory before and after the fact of robbery in the holdup at Nantasket on July 5.

Miss Chase, stylishly dressed in a black velvet gown and hat, pleaded not guilty to both charges after the reading of complaints before Judge Daniel Shea.

A highlight of the trial was given to a crowded courtroom with the testimony of William Mardirosian, 27, of Cambridge, who testified that he had introduced Miss Chase to Simpson, but that she knew the much sought gangster only as "Eddie."

He said that Simpson had driven Miss Chase to a night spot in Wrentham on several occasions both before and after the Nantasket Beach robbery.

He also stated that he, Simpson and Miss Chase had gone on a gay automobile ride to Newport shortly after the robbery and that Simpson had left them in Boston.

James McLaughlin, a bartender at a Weymouth hotel, testified Miss Chase had made frequent trips to the hotel with a man he identified as Simpson from a picture offered in court.

Another witness was Samuel Cohen, the robbed owner, who said he had hired Miss Chase May 30 and that she worked as a checker at the restaurant until the first week of August.

Cohen said that on the morning of the holdup Miss Chase arrived for work late and was eating her breakfast in the kitchen when the holdup men entered.

Belief of his parents that he may have picked up and swallowed something poisonous resulted in a police investigation, pending an autopsy report by the medical examiner.

AMAZING NEW VALUE... A NEW KIND OF MOTOR OIL

Jenney again leads in improvement and value! The only New England company to give you Solvenized Gasoline—

Now Jenney brings you SOLVENOIL ... the extreme pressure motor oil

100% Pennsylvania Oil Improved With New Patented Process

● In the last few years automobile engines have been revolutionized. But the oils to lubricate them have remained much the same as they were 20 years ago.

Now comes the scientifically made modern oil especially designed for modern motors. It is SOLVENOIL, developed by research, tested and approved by automotive engineers—the greatest improvement in lubrication in this generation.

Modern motors are smaller, faster, more powerful, and develop speeds and pressures undreamed-of a few years ago. Average oils are often squeezed out at these pressures and destroyed by the heat developed. SOLVENOIL will lubricate perfectly at any driving speed and at any operating pressure.

This is possible because Solvenoil is pure Pennsylvania oil improved by a special patented process which makes it more oily and enables it to cling to metal. Solvenoil's special lubricating film cannot be squeezed out nor destroyed in service.

SOLVENOIL covers every moving part with a safe protective film which reduces heat and friction, prevents excessive wear, and adds thousands of miles to the life of your car.

In addition—SOLVENOIL reduces sludge, and so lasts longer and requires fewer oil additions.

Jenney Solvenoil at 30c per quart costs no more than any high grade oil but it will last longer and save more. Start saving with Solvenoil today!

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15—Samuel Goldwyn is leaving Sunday for New York to meet Alexander Korda and to complete plans for their purchase of United Artists.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer doesn't seem to miss a bet when it comes to signing foreign talent. They have the largest influx of foreign prospects of any company in the business.

The latest is Don Standard, for years Robert Donat's stand-in and now playing the second lead in Robert Taylor's "Yank at Oxford."

Nice to give employment, but with so many worthy people in our country, it's too bad that some of them haven't been given these opportunities.

A Line Or Two "Alcatraz" yet to be shown in Hollywood delighted Warner Brothers and the Cosmopolitan crowd today by breaking the year's records at the Strand Theater in New York . . . That delightful number everyone is humming "Why Talk About Love" was written by Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell for "Life Begins in College."

Was that CAPTAIN JEFFERSON DAVIS COHEN who met MARGOT GRAHAME en route and escorted her to New York? DANIELLE DARRIEUX and her spouse HENRI DECOIN, making [illegible] a swank Be[illegible] Air mansion . . . That gala event starting off in style ELAINE SHEPARD, ex-fiancee of TERRY HUNT, doing the night spots with MARC CONNELLY, BOB BENCHLEY and CHARLIE BUTTERWORTH; she should have taken along a note book to record the dialogue. WENDY BARRIE threatening GLORIA YOUNGBLOOD'S publicity supremacy by visiting RUDY VALLEE at the Cocoanut Grove. BURTON LANE and RALPH FREED, two Para song writers, have written a new song "Salute to Romance" intended as Hollywood's welcome to the DUKE and DUCHESS OF WINDSOR. That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Hill Man and Dog Pal Parted by Auction; 'Needed Money Bad'

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 15 (AP)—Alonzo Whitelock of Unionville, Va., went back to the hills today with $6 in his pockets and an ache in his heart.

Alonzo, you see, had said goodbye to an old friend—his coon dog, Queenie. The parting came at Fredericksburg's dog mart.

The band played gaily, but if Alonzo heard it he didn't smile. Every now and then he leaned over and gave Queenie a pat on her old brown head.

Finally came the auction. Like a man leading a friend to an execution, Alonzo nudged Queenie toward the auctioneer.

"Coon dog, moon dog, coon dog," he cried, "what am I bid, what am I bid for a coon dog?"

Six dollars was finally bid. What got Alonzo was the auctioneer's "gone." He hung his head before the 3000 onlookers and tears tumbled down his cheeks. Somebody asked why he sold Queenie.

"I needed the money," he said softly, "needed it mighty bad."

RICE LAKE, Wis., Oct. 15 (AP)—Robert Hunner claims to have found a pedestrian who apologized for getting in the way after being struck by Hunner's car at a crossing.

After assuring Hunner that he was not hurt, the man said:

"I want to apologize for getting in your way. I was a fool to start walking across in front of your car, and I'm very sorry I caused you any trouble."

Neutrality Law Assailed by Sen. Lodge

Says It Aided Japan's Aggression, Balked Help for China

American neutrality law has acted only to insure Japanese aggression in China, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., challenged here.

The clause requiring belligerent nations to purchase war materials in the United States only on a "cash and carry" basis insures Japan's position in the Orient, making it impossible for American merchants to assist helpless China.

Japan is the only nation in the Orient financially able to pay in advance for war materials, and to transport them in her own ships, the 35-year-old junior senator from Beverly told members of the New England Traffic Club at the Copley-Plaza.

SHIVERED WHEN HE VOTED

Explaining his dissenting vote when the neutrality law was passed, Lodge declared the obvious unfairness of the Sino-Japanese situation justifies the lack of confidence he had in the measure at the time.

"When I found myself one of six senators out of 96 casting an adverse vote on this act I must confess it was a difficult one to cast," he asserted.

"I must confess I shivered when I cast that vote."

HITS USE OF "FORCE"

"The last session failed to do anything helpful for the ordinary citizen due to the Executive's plan to apply force to the judiciary of the United States," he declared.

"As a result, the eight months that Congress was in session was consumed in inactivity. Important measures were left hanging in the air. Congress stopped work, and the government itself almost ceased to function.

"Nothing has been done to overhaul the tax structure and to make tax rates more productive and more equitable.

"There is an obvious need to revise short-sighted tax on undistributed profits placed on the statute books a short time ago. [illegible] costing the average man [illegible] for what he gets out of [illegible]

"Congress is still authorizing expenditures far in excess of the revenues of the Treasury, still forcing the government to borrow, and still building a monstrous debt for the nation," he said.

Ill, Hungry, Hermit Vet Dies in Cave

Canadian World War Officer Scrawls Last Note

RIMOUSKI, Quebec, Oct. 15 (AP)—The shaky scrawl of a hand weakened by illness and hunger told today how death came to the lonely cavern of a Canadian World War officer who had turned hermit.

Captain J. Edouard Goulet, of Quebec city, died of hunger and exposure in the darkness of a natural cave where he had lived for two months near the village of Bic. He was about 50 years old.

A letter he had written to a sister, Mrs. Joseph Panneton of Montreal, and a tragic postscript penciled on the back of the sealed envelope was read last night at a coroner's inquest.

A passerby had discovered the body.

The letter carried this final paragraph:

"I am so ill, and I can't go out for help or food. I have given a little money to two young boys who passed by here to get me some food, but they failed to return and I haven't seen them since."

This final note was scrawled on the back of the envelope:

"To those who may find my body: I would have loved very much to see a priest. But nobody has passed here."

WOMEN DENOUNCE "BELL-THE-CAT" ORDINANCE

FAIRLAWN, N. J., Oct. 15 (INS)—The local borough council which recently passed an ordinance requiring all cats to wear bells today received a communication from the Garden State Cat Club vigorously denouncing the measure.

The ladies of the cat club pointed out that in addition to the inconvenience to their pets, their owners would be kept awake all night by bells ringing through the house.

Brown Secretary Resigns

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 15 (AP)—Dr. Herbert C. Bumpus, secretary of the corporation of Brown University since 1921, resigned today. Albert L. Scott of New York, a member of the board of fellows, was elected to the position.

Thomas Edison's Secretary Is Dead

BOONTON, N. J., Oct. 15 (AP)—William Henry Meadowcroft, 84, private secretary to the late Thomas A. Edison for many years and an inventor in his own right, died at the home of a son today following a long illness.

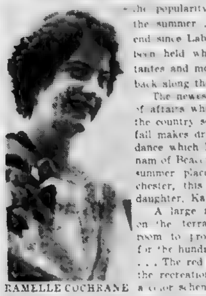
Putnam Dance Draws Socialites Shoreward Once More

By BETTY ALDEN

OVER A MONTH AGO when most members of the North Shore summer colony packed up their belongings and returned to town to reopen their winter homes everyone considered the "out of town" season to be at an end . . . and that which is known as the "in town" season to be once again in full swing . . .

But this year the shore seems to be reluctant to relinquish the popularity which it enjoys during the summer . . . Almost every week-end since Labor Day a large party has been held which has taken the debutantes and members of the younger set back along the shore roads again . . .



RAMELLE COCHRANE

The newest addition to the long list of affairs which seem to be prolonging the country season until a heavy snow fall makes driving difficult is the large dance which Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam of Beacon street are giving at their summer place in Lobster Cove, Manchester, this evening to present their daughter, Katharine . . .

A large marquee has been erected on the terrace outside the recreation room to provide extra dancing space for the hundreds of young merrymakers . . . The red and white color scheme of the recreation room has been taken as a color scheme for the whole party. Red balloons will hang from the ceilings in large clusters and there will be a profusion of red autumn leaves and chrysanthemums about the house . . .

Preceding the dance Miss Putnam and her house guests will dine with the ushers and a group of popular debutantes at a dinner party given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harte, at the Essex County Club . . .

Among the out of town guests here for the occasion are Miss Julia Bruce, a Baltimore debutante; Miss Adelaide Chatfield Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor of Chicago and Washington; Miss Alice Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whitney of New York; Miss Martha Phyllis Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitney of New York; Miss Frances Shepard of St. Paul, and Miss Anne Sumner of New York . . .

A number of North Shore hostesses will entertain friends at dinner parties before the dance . . . Mrs. J. Harleston Parker and her daughter Peggy, will have a group of dinner guests, as will Miss Julia Barbour of Beverly Farms, Mrs. Frederick L. W. Richardson, Jr., of Essex, Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy, an aunt of Miss Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cary Curtis of Manchester and Mrs. Henry G. Powning, also of Manchester.

Bachelors Yield to Cupid

ONE BY ONE the eligible bachelors about town yield to Cupid's arrows and the friendship and personality of an attractive girl . . .

Today is the day of capitulation for Nat Clark, who has been mentioned in social columns for the past four or five years as one of our most handsome and eligible young bachelors . . . From now on social gossips will not have to crane their necks at society gatherings to see which girl Nat is bestowing his favor upon . . . for henceforth his companion will be the charming and gracious Mrs. Nathaniel Clark . . .

Nat's bride is Jane Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKay Frost of Boston and Dover . . . Following the three-thirty ceremony in picturesque St. Andrew's in Wellesley, the guests will drive to "Frostfields" in Dover to confer their best wishes on the happy couple . . .

Jane's petite figure is swathed in ivory velvet with a long tulle and lace veil, as she walks altarward with her distinguished father . . . while her sister, Mrs. Austin Osgood (Mary Frost) is wearing a gown of gold lame for her role as matron of honor . . .

Mrs. Lewis Iselin, Jr., the former Sally Curtis of Boston, is one of the bridesmaids, together with three cousins of the bride, Ramelle Cochrane of Boston, and Nancy and Joan Ryerson of Chicago . . . The other bridal attendants are Agnes Osborne, Mrs. Barrett Wendell's granddaughter; Eleanor Stockton Shaw of Needham, and little Cornelia Clark, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrester Clark, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom . . .

The bridesmaids' gowns are of green and gold metal cloth accented by rust and bronze chrysanthemums . . . Mrs. Frost, the bride's mother, who has achieved the reputation of always being beautifully gowned, has chosen a costume of cocoa colored chiffon with brown accessories . . .

Large Group of Ushers

George O. Clark, 2nd, of New York, has come on to serve his brother as best man . . . and Nat has provided a large corps of ushers to seat the guests . . . Among them are two other brothers, Forrester "Tim" Clark, Dudley Clark, Jr.; also John Roosevelt, Austin Osgood, the bride's brother-in-law; Ferguson Locke, Richard Dow, who married Betty Sagendorph; Thomas B. Gannett, the former Anne Cole's husband; and Philip W. Smith, Guy S. Hayes, Henry A. Gerry, Edward Gerry, Gilbert C. Greenway, and W. Hoffman Benjamin, of New York . . .

The bride was educated at Winsor and Fermata Schools and made her debut in the 1933 season at a large ball at the Somerset . . . Her father, one of the Metropolitan Opera Company's most ardent supporters, has headed the Boston Opera Association a number of seasons . . .

Mr. Clark, whose full name is Nathaniel Thayer Clark, is the son of John Dudley Clark of Gloucester Street . . . He graduated from Trinity College in 1934 . . . He also attended Harvard, where he belonged to the Hasty Pudding, Institute of 1770 and Spee clubs.

THOUGH SHE is experiencing the thrill and satisfaction of being a successful journalist in foreign countries, Virginia Cowles, daughter of Dr. Edward Spencer Cowles of Park avenue, N. Y., and the late Mrs. Jaquith Cowles of Boston, must also be experiencing more than a few pangs of homesickness this week-end . . . For Virginia is working at present in war-torn Spain and is unable to be present tomorrow at the wedding of her sister, Mary Cowles, to Willard Reed, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reed of Cambridge . . .

The wedding will take place in Washington, D. C., where Mary has been a secretary to James B. Alley, general counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for several years . . . Her father will give her in marriage, and there will be a reception at the 1925 E Street Club . . .

CHAPTER 29

"OH, I'M SORRY to hear that." It was plain that Mr. Scott had forgotten Blanche, if indeed he had ever known her.

"I don't get out this way very often myself. Going to see some people about the house. It has been closed for a long time. I may sell it. By the way, have you had lunch? Let's go into the diner—"

Back in the parlor car later, he spoke again of the house. "There's no one to live in it any more, you know. Miriam, Constance's mother, is married again—I suppose you know that. And Constance's new husband seems inclined to drag her all over the world not that she's at all reluctant."

Her heart ached for the oldish, lonely man who had once been gay, so gay "young Mr. Scott." [illegible]

[illegible]

"Oh, you shouldn't have come [illegible] "You'll catch my cold. For that's all it is, a cold, though it's gone down on my chest, and Doctor insisted on my staying in bed."

[illegible] and the rest of her family were [illegible]

Linda, you're just skin and bones! You look so thin and tired. Won't you stay with us and get a little rest? We can find room for you EASILY."

THEY'D FORGOTTEN

[illegible]

[illegible]

"You ought to go [illegible] see Lawrie and his wife, too. Why don't you just run over now, dear? And if they ask you to stay to dinner, just you accept because I can manage beautifully without you."

"I don't want to go and see Lawrie!"

"But you do so much for Blanche, and Della does feel it—"

"I'm no philanthropist!" [illegible] "I'm not going to support the whole family. I just help Claudine because I'm sorry for the poor idiot and I—"

"Linda!"

"Oh, I don't mean it. The words just slipped out. Because I'm sorry for her, and I like the children, even if she had no business to have them."

"You always were smart, Linda. I guess you were smarter than any of us gave you credit for, unless it was Bert. He was the only one who didn't worry when you went to New York. He said you'd get along. But we all worried—dreadfully."

"There was nothing to worry about," Linda said shortly. She thought, if you worried, why didn't you do something? I'd have starved to death if it hadn't been for Tanya's—

"I guess you were right not to marry George. Don't tell me you've forgotten George?"

"No, I haven't forgotten him. I did him rather a mean trick. Whatever became of him, Blanche?"

"George? Oh, he's fine. He's married, you know."

"They all seem to get married. Who'd he marry?"

"Gracious, I don't know. A girl. They have a real nice home over in Chester, Della says."

"You and I seem to be the only old maids in the country. Everyone else is married. Constance, and your favorite, Ruth Wagner, and Glenn McAllister, and—"

"I don't call myself an old maid," Blanche said tartly. "If I haven't married, it's because I haven't wanted to. I don't know any woman I'd change places with, either. And I don't know that I'm so old but what—"

"Oh, I was just fooling! While there's life there's hope, I suppose. Not that I consider matrimony the only end."

Wonder what she'd think if she knew what Robert Deaming has in mind? Linda thought. For a [illegible] And then the [illegible] She was glad that [illegible] couldn't [illegible]

[illegible] strangers. [illegible] with those who [illegible]

[illegible] so far away that she wouldn't weaken and go visiting them every so often.

A half-formed thought that had been simmering in her mind began to take form. She hadn't [illegible] the precaution to ask where Mr. Scott would be staying in New York [illegible]

[illegible] "Mr. Scott, this is Linda again. May I see you before you leave town? I want to ask your advice about something."

"Have lunch with me. No, I'm afraid I can't make that. How about dinner this evening, if you can dine early? I have an engagement for later in the evening."

"I'll meet you anywhere you say. At your hotel?"

As she hung up, eyes bright, cheeks flushed with excitement, she looked up and saw with a start, that Deaming had come into the office, was watching her with a queer little smile on his face.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

That Magic Touch on Skin Eruptions

IDA LUPINO shows that it takes no more than a featherlight finger pressure, or perhaps an equally slight dab with cotton, to apply the fragrant rachel-colored lotion which dries up skin eruptions overnight or after a few applications.

Lotion Dries Pimples Overnight

By ARLINE GOULD

OF ALL the cries for help that come to a beauty editor's desk, the one which used to be practically unanswerable was the plea about pimples.

If you had them, about all we could suggest were diet changes—and what good were these with heartbreak in sight, perhaps that very evening.

[illegible]

[illegible]

It is little short of miraculous. Not expensive, it is easily applied and pleasant to use. For pimples which are only surface eruptions, just a little dab or two during the day and one at night will make them flee almost immediately.

[illegible]

Sure as fate, enlarged pores go hand in hand with this frequent-eruption state of the complexion. And there is a companion aid to the pimple lotion you should know about. It is a pastel lotion that not only refines the pores, but clears and firms the texture of the skin. It leaves you feeling deliciously refreshed and is particularly grand to use when you want to look your scintillating best of an evening.

MADGE GIVES STRANGE PROMISE

CHAPTER 432

I WAS sure of one thing, I told myself, as my memories of Robert Savarin swept to the climax of his death after leaving me half his estate that I might be able to provide for Lillian and Marion if ever they should need it.

An [illegible] looked with favor [illegible] romance [illegible] and Marion, whom he had adored for herself and because she was Lillian's daughter.

MIND MADE UP

Dicky would have commented caustically that my imagination was working overtime, but with my making of the promise it seemed to me that the eerie presence which had been hovering near me was drifting away, satisfied with my pledge.

"Are you feeling better?" he asked quickly.

"Oh, yes," I answered. "I am perfectly all right now, able to drive on the rest of the way to New Haven. And I think you will be glad to know that I have decided something while I have been resting. I shall lend you the twenty-five thousand dollars [illegible]

"What is that?" he asked [illegible] as if he were being tried beyond his strength by suspense.

There might be some delay at the bank. I did not anticipate any, but one never knows.

"No," said Samuel Brixton with the feeling born of weathering bank panics, "one never knows, but—you are pretty sure it is all right, aren't you?"

As sure as I can be until I have the bank draft in my hand," I said cheerily.

TELL RONALD?

"What do you think?" he asked hesitatingly. "Ought I to tell Ronald that everything is all right, and raise his hopes, until you actually do have the bank draft in your hand?"

"No," I decided swiftly, then at the sudden look of fright in his face I amended my negative.

"I'm only guarding against the thousandth chance," I told him quickly. "I'm very sure you don't need to give the thing another anxious thought. But you already have a plausible story to tell Ronald without making a definite statement as to your prospects of rehabilitation, and I do not see why—"

AGREES WITH HER

"You are right," he answered quickly, and both his voice and his face showed that confidence in himself and his future was once more coursing in his veins. "I would rather not tell Ronald the real truth until I actually hold the money in my hand.

But I am sure what you have planned to have me tell him will content him, or at least make him willing to go through with the things he has planned for Marion's entertainment. Poor boy! I wonder what he's thinking now. Pretty sad thoughts, I'm afraid."

"We soon shall be able to dispel them," I said, switching on the ignition key, and in another second we were again moving along the broad highway that leads into New Haven.

"You'll have to direct me," I said when we entered the city. "I'm not familiar with the streets."

"I'm all right to drive now," Mr. Brixton said. "And maybe I'd better. Ronald might be alarmed if he saw me in your car, and not driving."

Learn to Tell Fortunes

WHERE do you find the fortune-telling member of a group? Right in the center.

Just hint you have the answers to such exciting questions as "When will I be married?"

This is the way you answer the marriage question. Have Ted or Jane shuffle the deck and with the left hand draw four cards. The number of spots on these four are the number of weeks before the wedding.

If a king or queen is present it promises the match will be wealthy. A black jack says trouble may pop up; an ace begs you to stop, look and listen.

To find out if good fortune's ahead, the deck must be shuffled and three cards drawn. Red cards promise love and money. Black cards hint dark doings.

Bad Foresight Lost Bid

The bidding.

South, an optimistic player, chose to believe that North's four notrump response to the four club asking bid was predicated on second round club control and two outside Aces. This, of course, would make a slam virtually a laydown.

But South was not justified in jumping to this conclusion. There was another possible meaning to North's response, namely that he had the club Ace and another Ace, which of course was actually true.

Nevertheless, if declarer had capitalized the fact that the cards lay favorably for him, the contract would have been fulfilled.

West opened the spade Queen. Declarer won and led a heart. East won and had merely to exit in order to protect his club King for the eventual setting trick.

Declarer should have cleared the spades and diamonds from his own hand and from dummy before leading a trump.

With 10 trumps in the combined hands, there was a distinct chance that the Ace of trumps was blank. If the defender with the trump Ace also held the club King, he would have to lead from the latter card to the combined tenace in the North-South hands. That, of course, is what would have happened. Dummy would discard one club on the third diamond, and the fourth diamond would be ruffed in dummy.

If East over-ruffed he would have to lead from the club King; if he did not, a heart lead would force that lead. Surely this would have been a better plan than "giving up."

"COMPATIBLE EATING" AND SCIENCE

By IDA JEAN KAIN

YOU take the word of Paris on fashion, Hollywood on beauty, etiquette experts on good form—and just anybody on diet.

Whenever you let anyone tell you what to eat be sure that person is really qualified to advise you on the scientific subject of nutrition.

The chances are it will not be your hairdresser, masseuse, or even a movie star.

Only recently a beautiful screen star told me in all seriousness, " . . . And another thing! Tell them not to mix protein and starches."

"You feel much better if you don't," was her assurance.

Now, you can take a movie queen's advice about a lot of things pertaining to beauty, but please draw the line at diet.

Congress' Chief Puzzle to Be Economy

Roosevelt Popularity Chiefly Personal, Says Writer

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—President Roosevelt will [illegible] on his hands next month a reluctant, a stubborn, but not necessarily a recalcitrant Congress.

With the primary campaigns getting under way the gentlemen of the Cave of the Winds will return to the Capitol deeply impressed by the waves of personal popularity the President stirred up from Hyde Park to the Pacific Coast and back. That's why he made the trip.

ECONOMY IS WATCHWORD

Yet Congress will meet deeply impressed with the necessity for economy and retrenchment if the budget is to be balanced and the public credit preserved. Vice President Garner is leader of this school of thought.

How to reconcile desires so conflicting to give free [illegible] to the President for further popular spending and at the same time clip public expenditure to a rational pattern will constitute the chief problem of Congress at the extra session in the field of [illegible].

For the demand for further lavish spending [illegible] among the people. Congress knows that.

Drug Smuggling Gains Despite U. S. Battle

Addicts' Census Taken To Aid Campaign Of Government

(Copyright, 1937)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (INS).—The Treasury has initiated a national census of drug addiction to facilitate the government's campaign against the unlawful traffic in narcotics.

This was revealed today coincident with a preliminary report by U. S. Narcotics Bureau officials which showed that drug smuggling operations from the Orient still flourishes to an amazing extent.

Enumeration of drug addicts is being made by the 15 field offices of the Bureau of Narcotics.

ADDICTION DROPS

A rough survey made nearly 10 years ago revealed that one out of every 1,300 persons was addicted to drugs. Preliminary figures gathered by the bureau in several large cities indicate a marked reduction in drug addiction during the intervening decade.

This has been accomplished through more effective federal enforcement of narcotic laws, closer co-operation between state and national officials and international efforts to curb drug smuggling.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

Whether or not the Congressmen are going to enjoy themselves from the fifteenth of November indefinitely, there can be no doubt that the citizens of these United States are going to have plenty to keep their minds occupied and to busy their faculties.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The President may or not have been wise in pressing the issue of an extraordinary session. Time will tell. There will probably be many an ironic smile as people read his formal call, which says:

"I declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the Congress of the United States to convene in extra session." Many will inquire, "What's the emergency? What's the crisis?"

They will remember that the President once declared that [illegible] must be done N w matters of Supreme Court control and the like. They will wonder whether the emergency does not exist primarily in the President's mind and [illegible] whether Congress meets in approximately a month or in 19[illegible].

Summons Interrupts Needed Fence Repairs

The [illegible] surprise [illegible] probably be a source of extreme irritation to senators and congressmen who have fences to [illegible] making ready for a [illegible] next fall. They will be [illegible] of the [illegible] that the chances are that a session which begins in November is likely to continue under another name from January until well into the summer.

They know already that the latter weeks of the regular session next spring will have a good many of the features of the recent unlamented Congress. Save perhaps for the gruelling heat which made last summer a torment, there may be repetition of the same forces at cross-purposes which held up much of the President's "must legislation."

In addition, the Congress will be more eager to adjourn than it was a few months ago. With elections in the offing, elections on which will depend many a senator's and representative's political future, the new Congress is not going to be entirely patient.

Offense Proves Once More Best Defense

The President, a good Roosevelt, is apparently taking the bull by the horns, on the assumption that the best defense is always an offense. And there is no doubt that the President, whether he admits it or not, will be more on the defensive next January than he was last January.

Consider for a moment the measures or issues on which a Congress that has tasted power may take the bit in its teeth. The Black problem is obviously not settled yet for good. The fact that the chief justice went out of his way to inform the public how the quashed motions might be reintroduced, with more chance of success, is significant.

New England may be able to make an issue on flood control legislation and states' rights. Other states which suffered from floods may object to turning over all their water rights to the Federal Government. Worse issues have been known.

Lynch Bill Certain To Cause New Trouble

To the southern opposition to the hours and wages bill, which fared so unexpectedly badly last summer, there may be added opposition from some of the northern legislators, who care less for a favorable differential than for the enactment of a policy which will (again) leave the states in control of their own economics. Senator Lodge's attitude, for instance, may turn out to be long-visioned and fundamentally wise.

Worse of all, we are told that once the session is under way, the administration may not be able to stave off a vote on the ancient and always troublesome "lynching bill." If the President signs it he will split the solid Democratic South. If he does not, he may alienate the colored Democratic vote which Jim Farley has so carefully built up.

These are some of the domestic problems which face the President in his obvious determination to drive through, successfully, the farm bill, the hours and wages bill, and what have you.

Last, the ever-present threat of trouble over Spain and China, the imminent squabble over the neutrality law, the attempt of one faction to tie the President's hands and of another to give him the same kind of freedom which Woodrow Wilson exercised so disastrously, cannot be overlooked.

Personally, if I had to be in Congress this coming session, I don't know but what I'd just as soon be a Republican. They are going to have a good show and no responsibilities.

'Get Rich Quick' Scheme Before Jury Monday

Prosecutor Byrne Hits Plan as "Fantastic," Cites Figures

The workings of the Boston Discount Group, the latest "get rich quick" scheme, will be laid before the Suffolk County grand jury on Monday, it was announced today by Assistant District Attorney Garrett Byrne.

Byrne branded the "$640 for $5.95 plan" as highly fantastic in a statement which said that 32,[illegible] persons would have to participate in order for the [illegible] to obtain the maximum $[illegible] which was promised.

SEEK LOTTERY INDICTMENT

He said indictments charging conspiracy to steal and setting up and promoting a lottery would be sought.

Among those who will be called to testify will be representatives of the Boston Better Business Bureau who investigated similar plans in Cleveland, Toronto and Buffalo.

Others who will present evidence include Lieutenant Frank Hale of the state police, Captain John A. [illegible] of the attorney general's office, and Lieutenant Bernard [illegible] of the Boston police department.

The Boston Discount Group [illegible] offices in Devonshire street [illegible] Saturday and early Monday [illegible] the offices and the street outside.

Judge Poland Hardy Sailor

Commutes to Court Aboard Schooner

The vigorous sea going tradition that made Nantucket Island a watchword in the old days of the clipper ships finds a present-day exponent in Judge George M. Poland.

Judge Poland, judge of the Nantucket Probate Court and acting Judge of Plymouth probate court at Plymouth and Brockton, is the only judge along the Atlantic seaboard who journeys to his court by schooner-ship.

In a 32-foot two-master, black-hulled sailer, the Warela, Judge Poland sails from his home [illegible] the harbor and below the [illegible] Cape Cod canal [illegible] Plymouth harbor, when the court is in session.

In November increasing storms [illegible] will probably force the judge to haul his schooner up on the ways, using the regular steamer service from Nantucket to Woods Hole, and the train to Plymouth.

Robt. Johnson Author, Dies

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Robert Underwood Johnson, editor, author and former ambassador to Italy, is dead today in his 85th year. He worked with Thomas A. Edison as a telegraph operator in his teens, became a journalist at 20 and an internationally renowned figure in his middle and late years.

Death came at Mr. Johnson's home after an illness of two years. He had returned only last month from a summer spent with his son, Owen Johnson, widely known novelist, and his daughter-in-law, in Stockbridge, Mass.

The former ambassador, appointed by President Wilson in 1920, was director of the New York University Hall of Fame from 1919 until his death.

Missing Saugus Woman Sought

He was joined in his request by the missing housewife's mother, Mrs. Thomas Ralph of Elaine avenue, Saugus, reported on the verge of prostration. Only once in the three-month period have they heard from her, they declared.

ANN MARSTERS MAURICE N. WOLF HELEN HUGHES

Talent Quest Winner Is Congratulated At Airport

By ANN MARSTERS

In the midst of gay confusion and congratulations, Helen Hughes, winner of the Boston American-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Talent Quest, left for Hollywood last evening from East Boston Airport.

FRIENDS SEE HER OFF

At the airport, there was a whirlwind of excitement as Helen's friends crowded around her. Several of her classmates from Emerson College were there, and so were some friends from Houlton, Me., Helen's home town.

And two pretty young girls, who were finalists in the Talent Quest, arrived to wish their winning competitor success in motion pictures.

Representatives from M. G. M. were there, including Bert McKenzie and Maurice N. Wolf, New England sales managers. They made certain that Miss Hughes had her contract properly signed and safely tucked in her pocketbook. The contract itself is several pages long and signifies any number of important opportunities.

For the present it calls for Miss Hughes to appear in an M. G. M. production at a salary of $75 per week for four weeks. After that—it's up to Helen Hughes.

LOOKED LOVELY

Miss Hughes looked delightful [illegible] evening in her beige and black traveling costume. Her coat was of a [illegible] tweed with a [illegible] collar on which was pinned a corsage of Talisman roses. She wore a brimless high hat with a veil that came to the tip of her chin. She was really radiant, lovely and so excited that all she could say to anyone was:

"Oh thank you—thank you."

Just before the door of the plane closed she turned to give a last smile to the watching crowd. She couldn't wave because her arms were full of gifts which had been presented to her at the airport.

And so begins the career of this 19-year-old Emerson College student who, out of thousands of contenders, was selected as the most promising young actress in New England.

Everyone is wishing her well; hoping that she'll succeed in Hollywood. Helen herself isn't expecting too much out of the coming month. All through the praise and the glowing predictions showered upon her, she continued to say that she would return to take up her work at Emerson College, where she was beginning her sophomore year.

DETERMINED TO SUCCEED

"And I know," she has said, "that the month in Hollywood will be an invaluable experience for me. I know, too, that some day I'm going to succeed as an actress—even thought it may not be for a long time to come."

Helen Hughes hasn't the least bit of conceit about her, but neither is she a shrinking violet. She has poise and intelligence and ability—which are certainly three requisites for stardom.

Today Helen's new address is the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal., and that's only about three miles from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios where she begins her motion picture work.

We'll be hearing from Helen very soon and we'll let you know what Hollywood is doing to her and what she's doing to Hollywood.

Walsh Sees O.K. For Wage Bill

WORCESTER, Oct. 15 (AP)—Senator David I. Walsh (D.-Mass.) predicted today that "within a very few years practically all wage earners will not be working more than a 40-hour week, and the minimum wage everywhere will not be less than 40 cents per hour."

In a copyrighted article written for the Worcester Evening Post, Walsh said he expected the wage and hour bill already passed by the Senate to pass the House "early in January."

"If properly administered, the bill should free millions of wage earners from a continuance of past exploitation by some unscrupulous employers," he wrote.

"To my mind," Walsh added, "there would be no need of legislation of this kind if all wage earners were organized and were in a position to engage in collective bargaining with their employers."

'Fire Up,' Says Ol' Caterpillar

Creeping Bugs Warn Of Hard Winter

According to old-timers in Berkshire County, when caterpillars are out after October 1 beware of cold and snow. They contend the caterpillars hibernate in September and that if instinct tells them a severe winter is ahead they will leave their places in search of warmer ones. They have been seen crawling around of late.

Beauty's Death Probe Pushed

Assistant District Attorney Edward M. Sullivan today asked New York police for a full report on the death of Mrs. Anna Brigida, former Brockton beauty contest winner, who died in New York a week ago.

The request for information followed a statement made to local authorities by Jonathan Jefferson and Mrs. Jessie Keley, of North Montello street, Brockton, brother and sister of the dead woman, that they did not believe she died of pneumonia, as stated in the death certificate.

Sullivan said he talked by telephone today with a girl chum of Mrs. Brigida in New York who revealed that the former Brockton woman had been taken ill suddenly and hired a nurse.

The nurse was awakened by a noise on October 8 and on investigation found Mrs. Brigida dead, the chum declared. Sullivan said the nurse then called the police.

The brother and sister claim they noticed suspicious marks on the dead woman's neck before she was buried in St. Michael's Cemetery, Forest Hills.

Sullivan said he would wait for the New York report before the district attorney's office would decide whether or not to exhume the body and make a further investigation.

Postal Officers Assume New Jobs

Forty four years of service in the U. S. Post Office in Boston were rewarded today, as John F. Clark, of Halifax street, Jamaica Plain, assumed duties of assistant superintendent at the central office.

Formerly superintendent of the Charlestown branch, Clark was promoted to his new position by Postmaster Peter F. Tague. Frederic C. Caffey, of Alice street, Revere, for 32 years in the service, was promoted from chief clerk to superintendent at Charlestown.

Tech 'Census' Dance Tonight

Girls Must Supply Phone Numbers

The M. I. T. Catholic Club dance for "dateless" Tech men is to be held in Walker Memorial, at Technology tonight, and all girls who attend must be willing to tell the young engineers just where they live, and supply their telephone numbers.

In fact they seem to like it better, the Tech dance committee reports, for girls from Radcliffe, Wellesley, Simmons, Boston Teachers College and numerous other schools plan to be on hand.

While the dance has not attracted quite as widespread attention as other Tech dances where admission was charged on a weight per girl basis, or by the color of hair or eyes, nevertheless, the Tech boys feel that they have more to gain by tonight's affair.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Ann Marsters

It certainly pays to be honest—or even to appear honest. We know of a well-to-do Boston business man who was approached in his office by a rather poor-looking individual who insisted upon giving him ten dollars.

ANN MARSTERS

The individual said he had bought a second-hand suit, and in the pocket of the suit he had found the $10 bill. So he returned to the second-hand shop and after a bit of research, he had found out to whom the suit originally belonged.

"I learned," said the man, "that your wife had sold the suit to the second-hand dealer—so here is your ten dollars."

But now he's wondering. His wife told him that the suit couldn't have been his—and neither could the ten dollars. But there could be such a thing as an ingenious way of getting a job.

Believe It or Not, Men, But You'll Be Beauties Yet

Men should be more careful of their eyebrows and of the way they wear their hair—and there will come a day when they go to beauty shops just as they now go to barber shops.

That, gentlemen, is the opinion of Perc Westmore of the famous House of Westmore in Hollywood, who has come to Boston to give beauty demonstrations next Monday at Filene's.

"After all," he said, "there is nothing sissified about a man being fastidious about his personal appearance.

"And it's certain that there is nothing attractive about too-bushy eyebrows and the wrong kind of hair cut. You'd be amazed at the number of men—real he-men, I mean—who come into our beauty salon in Hollywood."

However, Mr. Westmore firmly believes, and hopes, that men will never, NEVER resort to makeup. Incidentally, there is hardly a star in Hollywood who hasn't, at some time, been "glamorized" by one of the Westmore boys. Monday, Perc is going to give the women of Boston several rules for beauty—simple rules which prove that "any woman can be a star in her own circle."

Thousand Trees Fall, "Gone With the Wind"

I don't suppose you ever stopped to think of how many trees go into the making of books. And even though you never think of it again, you may now learn that one good-sized tree makes about 500 books.

The main thing that's preventing Jimmy Cagney from appearing in Sam Harris' production "Of Mice and Men" is the salary which Cagney is asking. He wants $7500 a week. Harris says he won't pay it.

A Boston furniture store had a display in its window of a combination bar and bookshelf. The bar was nicely equipped with glasses, and there were books in the bookcase. But it did seem a bit odd to notice that the titles of the books were: "Hearts and Masks," by MacGrath; "Driven from Home," by Alger; "Jack Hildreth on the Nile," and "Ruth Fielding in the Red Cross."

MOTHER'S LOVE OR FATHER'S MONEY

Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 11

The Judge spoke to her sympathetically and kindly. He said: [illegible]

"If you'll consent to leave her, he'll send you to one of the best private schools in New England. He'll give you a generous allowance, a fine wardrobe, a chance to chum with girls your own age."

So the daughter [illegible] ever regretted it, although time has yet to prove the wisdom of her course.

THE "WIZARD'S" BRIDE

Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 9

Into her humdrum, frugal Boston life, romance came for the first time when she met—and loved—a glib and charming foreigner, several years her senior. He was only a barber, but he told her "Marry me, and some day, soon, I'll heap gold and jewels in your lap. I'll give you Paris gowns, autos, servants, everything."

Unbelieving, but happy, she became his bride. Almost overnight, a get-rich-quick scheme brought millions of dollars pouring into his hands. He said he was doubling, quadrupling investors' money by juggling currencies in international exchange.

[illegible] called him Boston's "wizard" of finance. And his [illegible]

He had learned the value of that when at last his bubble burst. [illegible] went to prison for a long term of years. But his wife was loyal. She found a job, supported herself, visited her husband as often as she could.

At last came the day when the "Wizard" was freed. [illegible] He begged her to come with him.

No longer young, she knew she must choose between husband and homeland. Here she had [illegible] independence, respect and friendship of her associates. She had discovered how much all these things meant to her. She could not bear to think of relinquishing them. Yet her husband's ship was sailing.

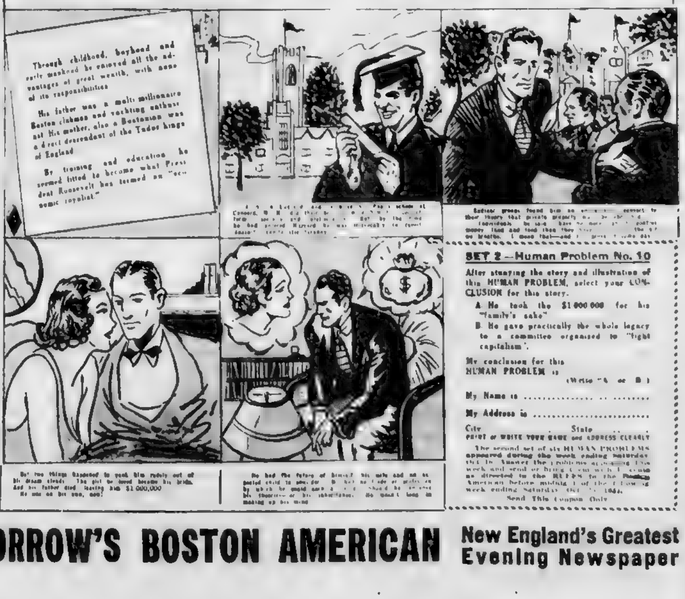
THEORY VERSUS $1,000,000

Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 10



Through childhood, boyhood and early manhood he enjoyed all the advantages of great wealth, with none of its responsibilities.

His father was a multi-millionaire Boston clubman and yachting enthusiast. His mother, also a Bostonian, was a direct descendant of the Tudor kings of England.

By training and education he seemed fitted to become what President Roosevelt has termed an "economic royalist."

"Looking over the recent erratic price movements of stocks it will be noted that sales of very few shares relatively, anywhere from 0 up to 400, have resulted in a very [illegible] of prices. The loan value of the stocks in banks or in stock exchange houses is determined by the exchange prices from day to day. In other words there may be 500,000 shares of some company outstanding; 300 sold on an illiquid market will result in a reduction of $10 per share in one day. Therefore, on transactions involving only $3,000 the decline reduces the collateral value of 500,000 shares $5,000,000. [illegible]

"We may get into a condition comparable with that of real estate where the seller has individually to hunt for an individual buyer. If the rules of the game were the same for real estate as for the stocks upon the exchange then if some owner in distress had to sell a property on lower Broadway at about one-half its former price, there might be re-established for all of the lower Broadway property a new and lower basis on which savings banks and other lenders would be forced to call upon the owners for additional security."

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN'S $20,000.00 HUMAN PROBLEM CONTEST

Here Are Problems Nos. 7 and 8—Everything You Need To Start Is In Today's Paper—

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 7

It was the inevitable triangle with man's self-imposed commandment "thou Shalt Not Tell," against his sworn oath to "Tell the Truth and Nothing but the Truth."

He was a young married police officer. Father of a child, apparently home-loving and proud of his lovely wife.

Then came the "outside" affair. She was an attractive woman. Little did they know their friendship would grow into a romance with a sequel of mysterious death, scandal and a sensational trial as its tragic end.

They met when she stopped at his traffic post. He learned she was the wife of a friend. Soon they were driving into the country. A secluded nook ... a kiss. With it toppled over all thoughts of family, home and future. A kiss that would brand him as a KISS and TELL [illegible]

Exposure came suddenly. Newspaper headlines screamed the story of her husband's death, of police investigation and her arrest charged with the poisoning of her husband, a charge of which she was later cleared.

The police turned to him. Was he the motive they demanded in merciless grilling. What was his part in this affair. To clear himself he must testify.

Could he risk being involved. Could he tell of his affair and expose himself to ridicule. He faced the crowded courtroom and with upraised hand swore to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

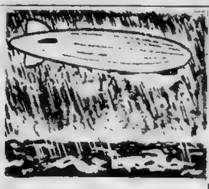
THE LAST COMMAND Set No. 2—Human Problem No. 8

The Naval Board of Inquiry closed the investigation. The answer forever buried. Another major air disaster charged to acts over which man had no control.

The dirigible commander had protested the flight asking that it be delayed. Orders came to start at once.

"We have been ordered," the Commander told his aide "to make a cross country flight to assure the success of a State Fair. The boys at the Capitol want some publicity. I hope they get the right kind."



The flight began. Into the storm [illegible] this rode the huge ship. Helplessly it was caught up, tossed about, tore like a [illegible] to the ground, breaking in half.

[illegible]

It was a major disaster. Half the crew perished as one half of the ship crashed to the ground. The others hung desperately to the other half as it was carried through the air.

Helpless, tossed about in a raging torrent the last of the ship crashed. Only a few members survived. There was a great cry from the public for an investigation to place the responsibility.

W. Aldrich Gives Views On Price Dip

Federal Regulation Is Seen as Weakening Market Structure

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The prominent place Winthrop W. Aldrich occupies in the financial and banking world makes it practically impossible for anyone—not financial writers alone—to avoid a study of his speech before the Rochester Chamber of Commerce. It amounted to a severe indictment of Federal restrictions that made it [illegible] impossible for the market to absorb liquidation.

In [illegible] the market jumped [illegible] on Thursday [illegible] that the board chairman of the Chase National Bank was blaming regulation for the recent slump. [illegible] was not the point he made [illegible] served to frighten traders and investors by raising the doubts as to the market's ability to hold here or at any other time [illegible] was that [illegible] caused the slump [illegible] [illegible]

There were some things said by Mr Aldrich, however, that could not be twisted into a wrong meaning. They concerned the relation of declines to foreign selling and general business conditions. Neither was found at fault. The most blame was laid at the door of Federal Reserve margin requirements. He strongly urged that the authorities immediately consider a reduction in the present requirement of 55 per cent. And his suggestion was couched in firm language through the use of the word "substantial." While this writer presented a somewhat different version of the causes and course of the decline last Wednesday it is with considerable pride he notes the partial paralleling of his ideas with those of Mr Aldrich and the identical conclusion that a substantial margin reduction is needed now.

* * *

As to what might happen we are [illegible] to [illegible] The administration has [illegible] its preference for [illegible] advisers and [illegible] of a surp[illegible] Mr. Aldrich's suggestions [illegible] hope it is [illegible] hope for the best which means [illegible] of the fallacious [illegible] ers and [illegible]

* * *

The sporadic spells of investment buying which furnish temporary support for the market do not appear to be enough in themselves to bring about a real turn. It seems as though good news was the missing factor. Something seems needed that will break up the film of gloom that lies so thickly over the financial district. Logic and reason are of little avail in stemming selling and if they fail when aided by support of the type seen on Tuesday and again at times yesterday then it looks as though rescue efforts must depend on a good news break.

* * *

As to where the change in the character of the news will originate it is hard to say, but the chances favor some government agency or political source. It might very well be that the ICC will come through with higher rates on certain classes of freight this week as we think or it might be some statement re[illegible] regulation or pending changes [illegible] in line with expressed [illegible] that will stem the tide of liquidation.

Will Continue Fight Against U. S. Deficits

It is not only our duty to pay our deposits on demand, but to the best of our ability to pay in dollars of substantial purchasing power."

[illegible]

A unanimously adopted resolution dealing with the significance of the collapse in the stock market said:

"The recent decline in the security markets, and the current decreases in business activity appear to be reactions from the exceptionally rapid advances of last year and the early months of this one.

"They reflect a realization on the part of investors and businessmen that it was unreasonable to expect an indefinitely prolonged continuation of recovery at the vigorous rates at which it had been advanced. Recessions have been features of all previous recoveries."

[illegible] "the time has come to encourage the steady progress of normal business and industrial enterprise which cannot prosper without the confidence which will be engendered by bringing federal expenditures through economies in line with income."

The bankers also advised the politicians that business would be expanded by the "elimination of duplicate taxation" and by creating "greater certainty in administration and standardization of tax laws."

GEORGIA '11' IN BOSTON FOR HOLY CROSS GAME

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
BOSTON, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1937 23

AUSTEN LAKE

Survey of Saturday's Football Games: A Scientific Pick

HARVARD-NAVY: Richard Cresson Harlow, professor of football and Oology at Harvard, takes his migrant redbreasts to Baltimore, home of oysters, orioles and H. L. Mencken. Oology is the science of robbing bird's nests. A famed naturalist once said that, when an oologist prepares his specimens, he blows all the science through the hole in the shell. Still the relationship between opposite groups of birds, like the Cambridge robin and the Annapolis sea-geese, is indicated by the nature of their eggs. Harvard hopes to force Navy to lay a fresh goose-egg from Harlow's Agassiz museum. A ballot for the redbreasts (Merula magratori).

AUSTEN LAKE

HOLY CROSS-GEORGIA: Although Georgia, named after King George II of England, was the last of the original thirteen colonial states to be settled, the Georgia Bulldogs have not been settled by a northern varsity since Yale did it in 1928. Georgia seceded from the North on Jan. 19, 1861 and has made Yankee potroast its dish ever since. Jaw jaw, sometimes called the Honey-suckle Hurricane and sometimes the Flying Moonshine, was the first state university to be chartered (1785), a fact that will not impress Bill Osmanski, H. C. thunderbolt, who wasn't born then and hence, has no respect for antiquity. One light vote for Holy Cross.

* * *

Dartmouth and B. U.

BROWN-DARTMOUTH: The Brown bear hibernates at the approach of winter, retiring to deep crevices at the foot of old tree stumps, rocky caverns, hollows, or under log piles, such as abound in the hills of Hanover. A lean bear in mid-October is exceedingly vicious, according to Curator Dan Harkins of the Franklin Park Zoo. Feeling that he has not stocked enough winter-warming fats and energies to last his long sleep, he becomes irritable, savage and dangerous to inexperienced hunters. Still the Indian of the North should know how to handle this. Fresh rump-steaks for Dartmouth.

B. U.-CLARKSON: The frost is on the pumpkin in upper New York State where Clarkson Tech makes its home in the old town of Potsdam. Ancient elms spread their leafy arms over the sleepy streets [illegible] eternal benediction. Farmers in [illegible] axe helves and whiffletrees. Earn as You Learn: Alumnus' Return

YALE-ARMY: The pay, while learning, of every West Point Cadet is $848.20 a year, from which his cost of maintenance is deducted and the rest banked to his credit with the post paymaster. Lieut. Gar Davidson, the Army coach, draws only his base army pay, or about $200 a month, with allowances for heat, light, rations and residence. Ducky Pond, the Yale headcoach, gets $8000 flat and works only four months in the year. Hence, one economic royalist vote for Yale.

COLUMBIA-PENN: [illegible] Columbia's coach who was [illegible] Mass. takes another [illegible] at Penn in pre-war days [illegible] distribute [illegible] Penn football tickets and sold freshmen caps [illegible] A great [illegible] grizzly with a heart as big as a [illegible] will do his utmost to give his old college [illegible] but when Thanksgiving Day comes he will be [illegible] rooting his larynx out against Cornell. One [illegible] a grand guy and a skinny guess for Penn.

Shellack, Seashells and Horatio Alger

PRINCETON—CHICAGO: The most Ivy-laden college of the Eastern Ivy group plays Al Capone's old neighbors. Ivy is the popular name for herbs which creep, climb or crawl, the penalty for which is five yards from the spot of the foul. Contrary to popular notion Ivy is not parasitic. The New Jersey type, Hedera helix, furnishes hederic acid which forms a base in making high grade shellacks. A stiff shellacking for Chicago.

FORDHAM-PITTSBURGH: What Pittsburgh's Stephen Foster gave to the [illegible] songs like "Way Down Upon the Swanee" [illegible] back to Pittsburgh in a Virginia mountain youth named Marshall Goldberg who bangs opposing tacklers round his [illegible] One mammy song for Pitt.

NOTRE DAME-CARNEGIE: Since the late and reverend Knute Rockne's magic lifted Notre Dame from an obscure, mud puddle college [illegible] it turns to a kind of Everyman's varsity with the largest [illegible] in the country. Its terms have been strictly [illegible] per cent of the gate with a cash guarantee. A self made institution which has prospered according to Horatio Alger ideals versus a hereditary [illegible] institution endowed by the late, great Andrew Carnegie. N. D. needs the money. One vote for N. D.

Southerners Stern Test For Purple

Bulldogs Have Best Team in 10 Years, Say Dixie Critics

By WALTER KILEY

Georgia's Bulldogs, the football team which had a lot of winning fun at Yale's expense over a 4-year stretch, paid their first respects to Boston at 7.40 this morning, optimistic over its chances with Holy Cross, which it meets at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

Physically the Georgians looked the part and at least appeared to be what Atlanta critics claim for it, the biggest and best Georgia team in 10 years.

The Georgians profess to hold no fear of the Purple's great "Bullet Bill" Osmanski, who is generally credited with being New England's greatest fullback and a definite candidate for All America honors.

'Second Williams,' Ross Says—Team Great in '38

Although his team is not expected to cause any consternation in the race for the schoolboy title, Nate Ross, coach of Gloucester high school, cannot but smile to himself as he ponders over the prospects for next season.

A lack of reserve material has weakened this year's team to such an extent that it has already dropped two of its four games.

But this does not worry the fisherman mentor as he has a trick up his sleeve that would be the envy of any school coach in the state.

NAVAL OFFICER URGES LAZZERI BE NAMED BEES PILOT

The [illegible] Lieutenant J. C. Kresky, stationed at [illegible] Navy Yard, has cast his vote for Tony Lazzeri [illegible] of manager of the Bees.

"Tony Lazzerie is my choice for manager of the Boston Bees. One of the smartest men in baseball, young, colorful and of Italian parentage. This combination is bound to create a following from the Boston populace and naturally enhance the gate receipts of the management.

"Bill McKechnie is also smart in accepting the managerial berth of the 'Reds'—Bill, no longer young and looking forward to security in his old age (who doesn't?) is feathering his nest, with a nice two-year contract.

"I believe the change most beneficial to the Boston fans and to both Tony and Bill.

Dempsey Picks Max To Kayo Louis | Farr Is Praised By Former Champ

By JACK CONWAY

JACK DEMPSEY was visiting with Benny Ginsburg at the Club Mayfair.

"What do you think about the heavyweight situation?" I asked the old Manassa Mauler.

Mr. BOSTON

"It is all shot to pieces," he replied quickly. "I don't like to say 'I told you so,' but I was the first person to say Joe Louis couldn't fight. I made this statement when Louis was knocking out Primo Carnera and Max Baer. Even in those bouts I didn't think he showed much fighting form.

"When Schmeling knocked out Louis, a lot of people who had been charging I was jealous of Louis' ability agreed that I was right in my size-up of the Detroit heavyweight.

"I believe Schmeling will knock Louis out when they meet in a championship bout next June. The German is getting along in years, but I still think he is good enough as a fighter to lick Louis.

"Tommy Farr will give Schmeling more trouble than the latter will receive from Louis. Farr is young, shifty, knows boxing and is dead game. He might beat Schmeling who has never looked any too good when opposed by a shifty boxer.

"Sharkey, a good boxer, always could beat Schmeling. Max is a puncher, and has a chance to knock out any heavyweight he can hit."

I mentioned to Dempsey that I saw the stories from New York to the effect his wife, the former Hanna Williams, was going to return to the stage.

"Mrs. Dempsey will only appear in this one show," said Jack. "and will show in Boston and New York.

"Now that we have two wonderful baby girls, I consented for Mrs. Dempsey to return to the stage for this one show," said Dempsey. "I know Mrs. Dempsey will make a hit in her new production."

Dempsey told me he has made arrangements to operate the Vanderbilt Hotel at Miami Beach, Fla., this year again. Jack has closed a deal by which Benny Ginsburg will be associated with him at the Vanderbilt Hotel.

Dempsey came to Boston to referee wrestling matches at out-of-town clubs. He found time to make a personal appearance at the Club Mayfair, while he also dropped in on Lou Smith and Frank Menke at Rockingham Park. Menke was Dempsey's "ghost writer" when the latter was world's champion.

Dempsey has something of the gypsy in his makeup, and likes to keep on the move. He keeps hopping around the country making personal appearances and refereeing boxing and wrestling bouts as well as caring for his restaurant interests.

New Wrestling Faces at Garden

Karl Davis, former collegian who has been wrestling in Ohio for the past two years, will appear in the semi-final against Danno O'Mahony, former world's heavyweight champion. Davis has been trying to get a title bout with Yvon Robert, but the latter has refused to meet him.

Tex Bailey, a 300-pound Texan who has more whiskers than "Man Mountain" Dean, will collide with Hans Bauer of Germany in another bout which is expected to furnish its share of thrills.

Steve Casey of Ireland, European heavyweight champion, and Tor Johnson, 365-pound Swedish champion, will mingle in the feature bout. Johnson is one of the most powerful men to ever appear on a local mat. It will be interesting to see how he fares against the rugged Casey.

Excitement High As Draft Horses Break Loose

It's Bankers' Night at Commonwealth Armory tonight as the 10th annual 110th Cavalry Horse Show enters its second day of competition.

Saddle horses will vie for the trophy awarded by Marion Atherton while the hunters' competition will be for the prized Copley Plaza trophy.

Governor's Night, which opened the four-day carnival, was attended by some 2000 enthusiastic spectators, who warmly applauded the action.

The stable of Mr. and Mrs. Reed A. Albee made an impressive debut with their Bellaire Kitty, which won the blue in the class for model saddle horses over 14.2 hands.

Georgia, Bates Favored

By MURRAY KRAMER

The college football parade rolls merrily along . . . the usual amount of upsets will headline the Sunday papers, and many a team that is undefeated today will be listed among the also-rans Saturday night.

For the first Saturday of the current football season, there will be a dearth of local competition here in Boston . . . with Harvard at Navy, Boston University at Clarkson and Boston College idle, the setting is perfect for Holy Cross which moves into Boston to entertain Georgia . . . both teams are undefeated, and it should be a fairly even battle with Georgia merging on top . . . the only other game in Greater Boston is the Bates-Tufts clash . . . Bates gets the nod here because of Tufts' weakened condition due to the loss of Captain Zimman . . . Northeastern remains within local confines, traveling over to Lowell to battle Lowell Textile, and it should be a victory for the Huskies.

Despite the fact that Harvard is at Navy, there is great interest in this battle . . . not only are both schools undefeated, but it is really Harvard's first test . . . this game will really determine just how strong Harvard is . . . many feel that the Crimson will win, but on the cold facts Navy must be given a slight edge . . . Boston University should return home from Clarkson with their third straight victory.

The big game here in New England is Army vs. Yale at New Haven . . . It is really a tossup, but the Cadets may get that one break that will spell victory . . . Brown is on its way back but cannot hope to upset Dartmouth . . . University of Maine figures much too strong for Arnold . . . New Hampshire should whip Colby . . . Williams will avenge last year's defeat at the hands of Bowdoin . . . St. Anselm's should duplicate last year's victory over Providence.

Glancing around the East, exclusive of New England, there are certainly many standout games scheduled . . . Fordham-Pittsburgh is the top-ranking, because of the fact that the Rose Bowl may be awaiting the victor . . . Their last two games wound up in scoreless ties, but this year we cannot help but feel that Pitt will come out on top . . . Cornell will remain undefeated at the expense of Syracuse . . . I look for Colgate to upset Tulane . . . Notre Dame comes into Pittsburgh and will take the measure of Carnegie Tech . . . New York writers are picking Manhattan to take Villanova, but a victory on the part of "Clipper" Smith's boys would not be the least bit unexpected from this corner . . . Columbia will edge Pennsylvania.

In the Middle West the schedule does not look any too tough . . . Princeton battles Chicago and should win easily . . . Indiana will find Illinois tough, but should win . . . Minnesota is much too strong for Michigan . . . Nebraska will take care of Oklahoma . . . Northwestern will edge Purdue . . . Western Reserve will take care of Baldwin-Wallace to extend its record to 27 games without a defeat . . . Wisconsin will beat Iowa.

Down South, Mississippi State will knock Auburn out of the undefeated class . . . Centenary will do the same to Baylor . . . Duke will give Georgia Tech its first defeat of the season . . . Louisiana State will remain undefeated at the expense of Mississippi . . . Southern Methodist carries too many guns for Vanderbilt . . . Alabama is a bit too strong for Tennessee . . . Texas, which has yet to win its first victory under the Dana Bible regime will drop one to Arkansas . . . Texas Christian will beat Texas A. and M. in a good old-fashioned dog fight.

Army Practices In Yale Bowl

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15 (AP)—Yale and Army football squads both worked out in the Bowl here today for the last time before they clash tomorrow.

The contest tomorrow will be the 36th between the two schools with the Elis having an 18-9 edge in victories with eight ties.

pressure of a game against Navy, Dick couldn't see his way clear to passing up an opportunity of watching his old Terrors . . . The Harvard-Navy game is being well ballyhooed . . . And, it's predicted that contest will attract more than 50,000 . . . A year ago, Navy and Yale drew 43,000 to see Larry Kelley pull off his famous soccer kick which sunk the Midshipmen . . . The Crimson squad hopes to be back at its haedquartesr in time to see part of the Gilman-Tome School game, this afternoon . . . Harry Mehre and his University of Georgia bulldogs worked out yesterday in the Catholic University field in Washington and reports out of the Capital are that the Crackers are primed for the Crusaders . . . Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox and Mrs. Cronin will attend the Navy game, as will Mr. and Mrs. Bucky Harris . . .

And, among the thousands of other friends from Washington will be Joe Kennedy, father of the Harvard flankman . . . Navy has been holding secret practice all week . . . The Middies work out within a canvass-walled field and the few visitors privileged to watch the practice are escorted around by Lieut. Bob Pirie, assistant graduate manager of athletics . . . Down in Crabtown, there's a feeling that Bill Ingram, 2d, son of the famous Jonas and nephew of "Navy Bill," will see service against the Crimson . . . Butch Player and Al Bergner are the dreadnaughts of the Navy line . . . Irwin Finke, Frank Case and Bob Antrim have not had any contact work since Wednesday . . . The coaches felt that they were ready for Harvard and that they would prove more efficient through lightening practice . . . Lieut. Hank Hardwick, who succeeded Tom Hamilton as Navy head coach, is using the same system of play that was so successful for his predecessor and which was first installed by Jonas Ingram . . . Head Coach Hardwick is a real navy type with a square jaw but he's far more affable than the general run of U. S. Academy mentors . . . He admits that Navy is far more worried over the outcome of tomorrow's classic than it was a year ago . . . Navy scouts have returned to Crabtown with some glowing reports on Harvard as a smooth functioning machine . . . And, if the truth were known, the Sailors fear Art Oakes, the Crimson passer, no end . . .

Down in this section, the experts rate Captain Ray Dubois as the best running guard in the East . . . Whether they are grounded or pass safely over the Harvard shoal, the Sailors will clash with Notre Dame next week . . . And the feeling is prevalent along the banks of the Severn that it will be Anchors Aweigh if the Middies weather the Harvard game . . . Frank Ryan, the Harvard's energetic publicity director, is eligible for a rebate from the railway . . . Grandma's Boy was outpaced for the first three furlongs, began bettering his position thereafter and coming through on the inside at the stretch turn, supplanted Miss Trophy from the command and outlasted her at the end. Miss Trophy displayed speed from the start and held on in gamer fashion than usual in the closing drive. Euryalus was forwardly placed from the start but was unable to close any ground in the stretch run. Bright Don closed some ground. Dyak away slowly, closed a big gap. Whisk Party was unable to reach the leaders. Colonel Abe had brief early speed. He pulled up lame.

A Trophy Worthy of Any Mantlepiece

1000 Chevrolet Dealers in Hub

Executives and salesmen for Chevrolet motor cars, numbering more than 1000, were in conference at the Statler today to discuss a publicity program for the 1937-38 Chevrolet.

H. J. Walsh

H. K. Bragle, New England district manager, welcomed the group.

Bragle said the "pre-views" of the new car in New England, especially at Portland, had resulted in enthusiastic response from the public which had examined the new model.

This year, according to Bragle, the production will be stepped up considerably to meet the demand for the new type Chevrolet.

H. J. Walsh, Boston zone manager, was chairman of the program.

Court Restores 'Gansett License

at the track several weeks ago brought into the open a political feud between O'Hara and the governor. Quinn has said he would drive the turfman out of the state.

REFER TO KIERNAN

A suspension of the track's license followed a hearing by the state racing division of charges against the association. One of several allegations was that the association used, for other purpose, money earmarked to tak ecare of payment on uncashed winning pari-mutuel tickets.

The association contended at the time that Francis J. Keirnan, chairman of the division, had no right to sit in the hearing. In its ruling today the Supreme Court said:

"We have found that all the contentions of counsel for the respondents, and for the governor, with reference to the issue of disqualification of the chairman to sit as a member of the tribunal in the determination of the charges against the petitioners here, are without merit.

QUASH RECORD

"We, therefore, are of the opinion that on this issue of disqualification of the chairman, one of the reasons advanced on behalf of the division, for denying the motion to disqualify the chairman, and for refusing to permit testimony to be introduced, in support thereof, is found, and that, in so acting Chairman Kiernan, and the division, committed prejudicial error requiring that the record be quashed on certiorari proceedings, no other remedy being available.

"The prayer of the petition for release is therefore granted, the record of the hearing before the Division of Horse Racing of the State of Rhode Island and all findings thereon, including the decision of September 17, 1937, are a nullity and all are hereby quashed."

Rockingham Racing If 'Gansett Stays Shut

Rockingham Park has already announced it would stage three extra weeks of racing, but it stated in its announcement it would not run these additional days of racing in the event Narragansett Park was able to operate.

Rockingham Park, Suffolk Downs and Narragansett Park have a 1937 race date agreement which prevents conflicts.

It is understood that the New England Futurity, a Narragansett Park feature, will be run off at Rockingham Park in the event the Pawtucket track were prevented from re-opening.

YANKEES

Kill Joe DiMaggio Hoop Ambitions

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Far as the Yankees are concerned, Signor Joe DiMaggio can play all the baseball he pleases this winter—but positively no basketball or kindred rough sports.

Business Manager Ed Barrow laid down the law when he learned that his star centerfielder planned to try his hand at forward with a Brooklyn semi-pro cage team. DiMaggio, Barrow said, didn't put up any argument about it.

Barrow pointed out that Joe has a weak knee that easily could be thrown out of "kilter" in a scramble on the floor.

Rides 203rd Winner

SAN MATEO, Cal., Oct. 15 (AP)—Johny Adams, leading jockey of the year, rode his 203d winer when he booted home Master Time in the mile feature at Bay Meadows.

Shreve, Crump, Low Display Dog Cup

Trophy to Be Given International Winner

The gold International Greyhound Challenge Cup, which is to be awarded the winner of the international race between the English-Irish team of canine champions and the best American greyhounds at Wonderland, Revere, next Tuesday, will be on display all this week in the windows of Shreve, Crump and Low Company, 324 Boylston street.

The cup is one of the finest ever designed in this part of the country and by far the most elaborate ever offered a greyhound breeder in America.

Early next week the cup will be on display at Wonderland, where the international race will be conducted.

The presentation will eventually be made by President Howard C. Davis of the Old Harbor Kennel Club, under whose auspices the fall racing meeting is being conducted.

Lawrence and Henry Giardi of Hartford, Ct., round out a balanced backfield, which will be augmented when 195-pound Hilary Renz takes over in Giardi's place as the "climax" runner.

Holy Cross, perhaps for the first time in over two years, is close to being 100 per cent physically fit, and boasts a healthy morale and confidence which increases daily.

The Purple feels it is a better football team than its immediate predecessors. This corner feels that Holy Cross has been coming all year and is ready to arrive tomorrow, putting on the best front since Dr. Anderson came to Worcester five years back.

Captain Bob Mautner, whose chances of being honored as an All-America center were rudely delayed when he was bowled over in the opening moments of the Purple's first game with St. Anselm's, has been taking his place in this week's workouts.

But it is doubtful that he will start, Jim Bowman again figuring. And unless his presence is badly needed, Dr. Anderson feels it will be wisdom to keep him on the sidelines another week, what with Colgate, Carnegie Tech, Temple, Brown, Western Maryland and Boston College still in the offing.

Tackle Joe Delaney, perhaps the most improved player on the squad, is also ready, well over his recent injury. And Renz' hand is healed sufficiently so that he will suffer few consequences. So that the casualties are now conspicuous by their absence.

Holy Cross will line up with Histen and O'Melia, ends; Delaney and Shields, tackles; Carr and Sophomore Turner, guards; Bowman, center; Ouellette, Giardi, Cahill and Osmanski, the backfield.

Maine Must Act

AL BRADY brought more than himself and his outlaws into Maine. The late, but not lamented, Public Enemy No. 1 brought also a lesson that concerns all States, none more than Maine.

AS LONG AS CRIMINALS CAN OBTAIN FIREARMS EASILY THERE WILL BE CRIME AND CRIMINALS. That was the lesson.

Maine, which might have been the new terror scene of the gang pledged to "out-Dillinger" Dillinger, has been exceedingly lax in legislating deadly weapons out of the hands of killers.

There, a person seeking a firearm permit is required to give only a name and an address. Then he receives the legal right to tote a gun, no other questions asked.

The knowledge of this laxity probably was responsible for the presence in Bangor of Brady and his henchmen. Certainly in no other State would it have been possible for them to obtain their murderous tools as simply as in Maine.

The official duty is therefore clear. Teeth, strong ones, must be written into all Maine laws dealing with pistols, revolvers and similar weapons. Public safety demands this.

What Maine has learned from Al Brady and his henchmen every other State that has harbored a bandit has learned.

Without exception, the man whose business is crime and violence is as strong as the gun he carries, no stronger.

Boston Honors a Leader

BOSTON and New England pay deserved honor to an outstanding son. He is Mr. George W. Mitton, who is observing the fiftieth anniversary of his association with the Jordan Marsh Company.

Mr. Mitton's life is the story of an ambitious, hard-working boy who wanted success and won it, squarely and fairly.

In 1887, when he was eighteen, he joined the Jordan Marsh Company as stock boy. Six years later, in 1893, he was named a buyer. That was the first milestone on Ambition's road.

Two years later he was promoted to the position of junior merchandise manager. This was another milestone.

Here, under the good tutelage of Mr. Eben D. Jordan, Jr., and Mr. Edward J. Mitton, his father, he studied the needs of the fast growing company.

A quarter-century and another milestone! George W. Mitton became vice-president. And then 1916 and the fulfillment of the dream of every ambitious man! He ascended to the presidency.

If this were all, this day would undoubtedly be a grand occasion. But it is by no means all. For the greatest of George W. Mitton's achievements were his contributions to the welfare and happiness of others.

It was he who took a forward, and then radical, step in the relationship between boss and worker. He told his men and women, "Let us not use the words 'employer' and 'employe.' From the errand boy to the president, we are all FELLOW WORKERS striving together for the same end." He meant it, as everyone who knows the Jordan Marsh Company realizes.

This was one of the very first stores in the world to institute a recreation center, including rest rooms, a library, a dental clinic, a health department and a cafeteria for its employes.

Truly, as has been wisely said, one fundamental policy guided George W. Mitton through his long career from stock boy to president. His motto, "An organization made up of concrete things—people," was not mere words. It was reality.

The Jordan Marsh Company, a great institution, stands today as an enduring monument to his leadership and devotion to duty.

"Tech" Provides a Clue

PERSONS who wonder what the world will be fifty years from now will find an interesting clue in the recent report of Dr. Karl T. Compton, president, to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology directors.

Dr. Compton announces plans for the construction of the Wright Brothers Memorial Wind Tunnel. Through this huge steel tube, he explains, artificial winds will blow at a velocity of more than 400 miles an hour.

Also, every conceivable condition that aircraft flying at any altitude might encounter will be simulated for aeronautical experiments.

Dr. Compton also tells of experiments with atom-smashing. Marvelous machinery, now under construction, will bombard metal with electrical discharges as potent as lightning bolts.

What will happen if the vast energy contained in a single copper penny is released, no one knows. Some scientists say the power would be sufficient to drive a liner across the Atlantic.

It is, therefore, not beyond the realm of possibility to vision an airplane flying with absolute safety around the world and "propelled" by a tiny bit of metal that might be carried in one's pocket.

The "Tech" experiments, so calmly discussed by Dr. Compton, represent the constant endeavor of science to provide a better, happier and more abundant life for everybody. We do well, all of us, to watch them.

The Navy Day Slogan

WEDNESDAY, October 27, will be Navy Day, and "A Navy Second to None!" will be its slogan in Boston and throughout the nation.

Thousands visiting the Navy Yards, inspecting the cruisers, battleships and submarines, will be interested in "A Navy Second to None!"

The troubled state of world affairs—civil war in Spain, international war in China, and threats of other wars elsewhere—makes it patriotic to be interested.

But "being interested" isn't enough. Seeing to it that America's defenses are sufficiently strong to resist attack by the world's most formidable nation is better—and wiser.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Thoughts while strolling: Octavus Roy Cohen sounds like a parachute opening. What a pal Joe Miller has been to Bob Burns. Gloomy monuments to a dead past—the World and Tribune Buildings on Park Row. Learn one thing each day: In Japanese O-hi-o means good morning.

O. O. McIntyre

Something else comes up like thunder out of China 'cross the bay. Ripley says you can smell China 100 miles at sea. Add wise old owl expressions: E. D. Coblentz's. Sidney Kent, a Mr. Big of the movies who used to be a cowboy. And his beautiful wife.

Hooray for Bruce Barton!

If you can't think of that Chinese general's name, listen to car wheels going over rail ends: Chiang Kai-Shek. If Gloria Swanson has aged in the past 15 years she doesn't show it. Not many know that Bugs Baer can draw pictures as funny as his paragraphs. And that means high hilarity.

For one of those English countryside squires jogging along in a cob-drawn trap I'll take Oscar of the Waldorf. What Hollywood will do to dignity: Ray Noble becomes one of the crack silly ass comedians. They say J. P. Morgan likes to prowl around pipe shops here and abroad.

A new Gable came to the movies: Stowkowski. For a neat sedate and dignified dresser it's hard to tie Mesamore Kendall. Memory: The embroidered splasher back of the wash bowl to save the wall paper. And Ed Hill remembers when New York had but three columnists. Which is a nice bit of remembering.

Claire Luce, a town toast for her dainty dancing in the Follies, is making London sit up with her roles as a dramatic actress. She has appeared in two hits in a row without twinkling a toe. And still another deep drama is being readied for her.

Miss Luce is a natural platinum blonde, best remembered for her entrance in a Ziegfeld show astride an ostrich—the same bird that once chased W. C. Fields into 41st street because in passing he playfully plucked a tail feather.

In those days Bill Fields never chirped a line. He was an expert juggler, with a comic routine, so superbly done Ziegfeld featured him in billing. As press agent for his shows, I used to watch him practice juggling on the old Frolic Roof. He would show up at 9 a. m.—unusual hour for an actor—and work until the matinee.

I see Bill only occasionally in late years. But in those days, too, on account of his large red nose and speech, everybody thought he was a perpetual souse. Yet he seldom drank. Booze is fatal to juggling.

Ed Swazey of the advertising biggities is America's No. 1 airplane customer. He, more than any other aviation layman, is a human bird of passage and always on the wing. He flies in New York from California almost every week, sometimes twice, not to include his side trips to Fort Worth, New Orleans, Cincinnati and where not.

A restaurant picturesquely mellow with days agone is the Smith's at Poughkeepsie, where the famous brothers got their idea for cough drops and where they first manufactured them and started to bank up a fortune.

Pictures, the same as those on the cough drop boxes, hang on either side of the door. One says: William Smith, born in 1830, died in 1913. The other, Andrew Smith, born in 1836, died 1898.

Paddle fans whirl above the tables presided over by corn-fed looking waitresses—and the place has the pleasant atmosphere of the cozy ice cream parlors—those agreeable meeting places in the prairie towns of the 90's.

The raids and temporary closing of the Minsky burlesque is to appearance only a gesture. In the sanitized version, law forbids the name Minsky and the term burlesque. But it's the same old dish—differently garnished. Most of them have been reopened with potential Gypsy Rose Lees just as daring as ever in that supreme art of yokel yanking, the strip tease.

A cheaper Broadway diversion is to stand near these show places and watch the old boys saunter up, look up and down furtively, and dart in like frightened rabbits.

My burlesque education was acquired in celebrated People's Over-the-Rhine in Cincinnati. Where the show began when the gallery bouncer rapped and yelled "Hats off!"

Waiters paraded aisles between acts with foaming glasses and year after year we hailed with delight Billy Watson's Beef Trust Blondes and Snuffy the Cab Driver.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

I saw it start during the Big War, when women began to take over men's work — crowd into offices and shops.

Elsie Robinson

Before that, feminine life ran to one pattern. Domestic—plain but durable. Two new dresses a year — in the spring and in fall. Coats to be worn until threadbare. Once in a great while the luxury of a "dressmaker" party dress . . . with a real store "hair do" and manicure.

Allure? The word wasn't yet invented. Ladies were loved for their chocolate cake and other substantial virtues—not for their duco finish. And "the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady" were identical eyefuls when it came to grooming.

Then came Feminine Jobs—and blasted this simple situation to smithereens. For industrial needs were obviously a long jump from domestic demands. The hand that clicked the typewriter required a far flossier finish than the one which rocked the cradle.

A TIP FOR HUSBANDS

Curl papers were OUT—so were home-made patches and half-soled shoes and countless other thrifty contrivances. And in came the Beauty Shop with its endless aids—trick little Two-for-$15 Gown Shoppes—a whole new world of Working Girl Fads 'n' Fashions.

And human history's biggest heartache following in its wake!

Where once the morning street had been filled with loitering groups of shopping housewives, still in curl papers and "bungalow aprons," now the pavements echoed to the clickety-click of lively French heels . . . the laughing chatter and fragrant swish of up-to-the-minute femininity.

But how about Tillie the Toiler's housekeeping sister? Nothing had revolutionized her lot. Day after day she plodded along in the same deadly dull rut her grandmother had followed . . . cooking, sewing, scrubbing . . . with reddened hands, straggly hair and shapeless waistline.

Small wonder she watched that morning office-girl parade with envious eyes . . . thought jealously, of her husband's daily association with these sightly sirens . . . wondered bitterly if she hadn't made a bad bargain when she chose kiddies instead of a career!

"The Housekeeping Blues"—they started with women's advent in industry and they're still going strong.

"Unreasonable!" say the men. "Women don't know when they're well off. Young wives and mother may not dress as well as their working sisters, but they should remember how sacred motherhood is!"

An impressive sounding argument, but how well would it work with The Boys themselves. Would Bill be content to shuffle around in faded overalls while Steve swanked by in trick tweeds, just because someone told him that fatherhood was sacred? He would not! He'd want a few material reminders of his importance, as well as a lot of kind words. And if his partner were smart, HE'D GET THEM.

SAY IT WITH GIFTS

And that same is much needed advice for all husbands and fathers. That sleek, efficient young person in your office is an eyeful, isn't she?

But don't forget that the somewhat faded, and at times a bit frowsy little woman at home could also be an eyeful, if she could spend several hours and plenty of cash in some beauty shop, instead of mending Jimmy's windbreaker, nursing Sister's measles and saving up for the rent day, Big Boy.

Yes, she HAS a beautiful and sacred job. But how about saying it once in a while with a nice, new rhinestone clip, or a week-end at the hotel?

It's a swell thing to be a saint. But saintliness isn't always comfort, when you see some cute little sinner stepping along in silver fox while you wear a $4.95 strip of dyed cat!

So—just to prove that you mean those lovely words, Brother—how about acting on the impulse NOW? And tell me what you chose. Gwan—I want to be in on the fun!

That's That

Secretary Mollin of the American National Livestock Association argues high prices of prime and choice grades of cattle are the result of a hog shortage instead of a shortage in the supply of cattle. His theory is that the pork shortage has increased the demand for beef.

Whatever the cause, resentment against high meat prices is widespread, and it is still spreading. A great many people are convinced the administration policy of scarcity, curtailing food production, is to blame.

Government experts have charts showing the farmer is getting a larger share of the consumer's food dollar. That is fine for the farmer, but it is little consolation for the housewife who finds prices so high she can't afford to buy the meat needed for her family.

An Illinois youth, returned to Colorado for trial on a charge of shooting a taxicab driver and stealing his car, is quoted by officers saying:

"I had a few drinks and I wanted to get hold of an automobile to drive to Danville to see my girl.

"I didn't mean to shoot the cab-driver. I meant to scare him. I had been drinking and I guess my aim wasn't so good."

What liquor did to this young man's aim is as nothing compared with what it did to his judgment. Of all the alibis offered for crime, there is none sadder than "I had a few drinks."

Officials said this was the first time in a decade that this kind of punishment had been used for this type of offense.

Whipping is a barbaric form of punishment, but there is none which fits the crime of wife-beating better.

A dispatch from Rome suggests that the small business man in the United States who complains about oppressive taxation and governmental interference with his business should try operating in Italy if he wants to experience real taxation and real governmental meddling with his affairs.

The fact that people in business are worse off in foreign countries than in the United States does not help harassed Americans.

Living standards are much higher here than in any other nation, but that doesn't keep us from striving to raise them still higher.

The most valuable lesson Americans can learn from what Italian business men are experiencing is that concentration of more power in government means less individual freedom and more oppression.

President Henry of the American Automobile Association suggests it might be a good idea to require persons who are just learning to drive an automobile to post a big letter "L" on their cars so other motorists could make allowances for their lack of skill.

That method is used in Europe. It might help a little in this country, but it wouldn't materially reduce the traffic death toll.

Carelessness, not ignorance of how to drive, is the big cause of automobile killings in the United States.

In a great many cases, novice drivers are safer than experienced drivers. Until they attain such a degree of proficiency that they do automatically the things which have to be done, they usually are more careful.

Isn't It So?

Women laugh when they can and weep when they will.

Women and Wealth

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Women don't give much money to education. Such is the finding of the Seven Colleges' Committee, looking into donations to colleges.

Edwin C. Hill

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard College expresses "shock and surprise" that Barnard alumnae have not been more generous to their alma mater. She notes the giver of the largest gifts to the college was a man, General Horace Carpenter.

The item gains interest in view of the fact that every few months turns up a story about women gradually corraling all the wealth of the country. Their holdings are now supposed to total about 70 per cent of the nation's negotiable values. Legacies and insurance, plus expedient business transfers, account for the money drift to the distaff side of the house.

Will they eventually be as generous in philanthropies and education as the men have been?

Possibly the women haven't gotten squared away yet and haven't quite as limber a check-writing wrist as the men have had. BUT THEIR INCLINATIONS IN THIS FIELD MAY BE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE.

In the days of the great benefactions of the Rockefellers, Andrew Carnegie, Russell Sage, Milton S. Hershey, S. S. Kresge and a host of others, the billions turned back into social rehabilitation were a tremendous factor in our general social solvency.

MEN MORE GENEROUS

Year by year, a larger proportion of the national wealth drifts into hands of women. How and to what degree will their largess differ from that of men?

The Seven Colleges Committee finds marked and, to some persons, distressing differences. Women give primarily for health and religion—to hospitals and churches. To a far less degree than men of the same means do they give to relief, education, reform, civic reform, social or scientific research or civic betterment enterprise.

Over a period of five depression years, the committee made a survey of benefactions in New York, Baltimore, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington.

The seven colleges were Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar, Barnard, Mt. Holyoke, Wellesley and Bryn Mawr.

The number of gifts by women in the five-year period was greater than the gifts by men—2675 for women and 2667 by men—but the amounts given by women were much less, on the basis of approximately the same resources.

The men shelled out $376,891,893; and the women, $138,394,248. For education, men gave $144,828,288, and women, $20,936,744.

Women gave principally to traditional causes, frequently on the advice of trust companies, mostly to churches and hospitals, hesitating to advance money for any other than old, institutional charities.

This has been ascribed to the innate conservatism of women and to their instinctive feeling, as conservators of health and morals, that health and religion had first call on their bounty.

SMALL COLLEGES SUFFER

Other plausible reasons were assigned by the committee to explain their lesser gifts to education as compared with men. Men's colleges, particularly the big and fashionable ones which aren't in urgent need of money, have rich and competing alumni always trying to help old Alma Mater to rise and shine.

Women's colleges, which now feel the pinch of meagre endowments, have few rich alumnae. The rich woman is apt to be merely the window of this or that Croesus, and quite possibly not a college alumna.

In a single year, $75,000,000 went to American colleges, by gifts and bequests, and about one-half of this golden shower poured down upon Harvard and Yale. "Unto him that hath shall be given" seems to the rule in educational benefactions.

Astonishing as it may seem, the University of Chicago recently estimated that the women of America now hold about two-thirds of the national wealth. The feminine capital of the country is now rated at around $210,000,000,000. The life span of women is about 6 per cent longer than that of men.

Social scientists have offered some disquieting suggestions about the coming matriarchy—about the financial Amazons of bank and bourse who are going to take charge before long. But these same chronic worriers have been alarmists on two occasions in the past, and they were wrong both times.

The first instance was when they were shuddering about women taking jobs in business, industry and professions. That was going to wreck the sex and make them less womanly. It did nothing of the kind. They're more obdurately feminine than they ever were—judging by the hats they wear and their adoration of Vincent Price.

THEIR HANDS TIED

Then, again, getting the vote was going to do something dreadful to American womanhood. Wrong again. They took sides in politics just like the men, with just the same sapience of foolishness.

Probably many rich women couldn't toss out millions for education even if they wanted to. Their funds are apt to be tied up by trust companies, yielding them a lavish income, perhaps, but with nothing loose for big endowments.

Then, again, these depression years have brought transfers of vast amounts to wives, the husbands having the canny idea that they are financially less vulnerable this way.

As a matter of fact, judging from some things I heard down in Wall Street a few months ago, I have an idea that a good look at these hide-away funds might considerably qualify all this story of petticoat capitalism.

March of Events

UNCLE SAM: Why in Washington? Can't you make China just as safe for Britain in London, Paris, Geneva, or even in Melbourne?

JOHN BULL: No, Sam. The original nine-power conference was held in Washington, and I now look on your country as home territory.

UNCLE SAM: Well, John, what do you propose to do in that conference? Or is it a secret between you and the other seven powers?

JOHN BULL: I shall ask you to take the lead in getting Japan out of China. If necessary I'll loan you a platoon or two of fighters from Australia and Canada to do it with.

UNCLE SAM: LOAN—That reminds me. There's about $5,000,000,000—

JOHN BULL: I can't discuss vulgar money matters now. Good day, Sam. Remember what you've got to do—"Make China safe for Britain!" And, by the way, Old Top, I'd prefer to hold that conference in the Treasury Building.

Another "Enoch Arden" case has come to light in Mineola, N. Y. Edmund C. Bowen, though legally "dead," has turned up and finds his wife has married again. He is held as a deserter.

The original Enoch Arden was born in 1864 of the brain of Lord Alfred Tennyson, Poet Laureate of England. In his poem, "Enoch Arden," Enoch is a seaman who is wrecked on a desert isle. After many years he returns home and, peering in the window, sees his wife and new hubby and their laughing, happy children in a perfectly sweet and immaculate Victorian family group.

Enoch says to himself, "Why break it up?" So, in the good old-fashioned Victorian way, he wanders off and dies of a broken heart. And how our grandmothers used to weep over poor old Enoch.

But nowadays, after some years with the gals in the South Seas, Enoch strides in the door, goes straight to the ice-box for a bottle beer and a chicken leg, borrows a five-spot from the new husband and goes his way singing "Oh, This Is the Life of Reilly!"

WELTANSHAUUNG. We see that word more and more in the newspapers and magazines.

It is another one of those grotesque German words used to awe the outside world. It means WORLD-VIEW, or a world philosophy, which, in the case of Germany, is the propagation of something that has no existence—pure Aryanism.

It is the jaw-breaking successor to the old Pan-American League, which was before the war organized to take over the world in the interests of German Kultur, now known as "Nazi Kulture."

This Nazi "World-View" has now caused the German Ministry of the Interior to forbid owners of residences and apartment houses to accept Jews as tenants. Shopkeepers will be urged not to sell Jews. And so on AD NAUSEAM.

There are only two countries in the world today which seem to be unconquerable—the United States and Russia.

The United States because of its isolation and great area would seem to be in a position to repel an invader bent on conquest. Russia would be hard to conquer because of her vastness.

Not only are England, France, Germany and Italy comparatively easy to conquer, but they have been conquered, England twice, by the Romans and William the Conqueror, and France, Germany and Italy so many times that historians have lost count. Japan, of course, is quite conquerable because of her position.

While Russia is almost conquerable-proof, she can easily collapse from within, like Germany and Italy, and probably Japan, whose people really never had any heart for foreign adventures.

That leaves the United States the one single major power in the world that apparently cannot be conquered (although we can be invaded). We need defenses.
